WOOD RIVER, ILL., BANK IS CLOSED BY STATE AUDITOR

Officers of First State and Savings Bank and Examiners Believe Depositors Will Be Paid in Full.

EXCESSIVE OVERDUE LOANS REPORTED

Officers and Directors of Institution Likely to Lose $51,000 Advanced Recently to Tide Bank Over.

The First State and Savings Bank of Wood River, Ill., the Standard Oil town south of Alton, closed its doors today, by order of State Auditor Russell. The bank opened for business as usual at 9 a. m., but a half hour later the closing was announced by the posting of a notice stating that the institution would remain closed, pending examination and adjustment.

From persons familiar with the bank's condition it was learned that the bank's officers and examiners from the State Auditor's office believe the depositors can be paid 100 cents on the dollar. Deposits, in the bank's last report Oct. 28, were $223,111. The deposits have been reduced to about $510,000 by withdrawals in the last two weeks. The stockholders, it is believed, will lose a large part of the capital, $100,000, and of the surplus, about $10,000, and the officers and directors of the bank, who lately advanced $51,000 in the effort to tide the institution over, may lose part or all of this advance.

Reported Reasons for Closing.
The reason for the bank's closing is declared to be an excessive amount of overdue loans and slow payment, and lack of personal attention to the bank's affairs on the part of some of its officers.

The bank was organized in 1909 by men prominent in the management of the Standard Oil's Wood River refinery. These men did not give close personal attention to the bank. The president of the bank, Harry H. Clark, is a former school teacher. He was promoted from cashier to president four years ago, and at that time I. C. Hatridge was made cashier. Hatridge had been in charge of the bank's affairs, Clark is said to have assured the directors frequently that the bank was making money, and the practical conduct of the institution has been left with the president and cashier. Because of the president's limited experience in banking, Hatridge is said to have directed most of the bank's actual transactions. Hatridge is said to have financial interests outside the bank.

Heavy Withdrawals Lately.
Within the last month, the general facts about the bank's condition became known to the directors, and a special meeting was held Nov. 1, and another meeting Nov. 6. At the latter meeting two Alton bankers, C. A. Caldwell and L. A. Schaffly, and one Edwardsville banker, Charles Rosenstien, were present. It was decided that the State Auditor should be notified of the bank's difficulties, and this was done.

Two examiners, E. E. Nicholson and J. Watson, made an inquiry into the bank's condition, and reported that the cash reserves were depleted and a considerable part of the assets "frozen." On the basis of their report it was decided that the bank needed $100,000 to tide it over its difficulties. The directors authorized $51,000, the largest amount subscribed being $15,000 by President Clark. Three Alton banks, the Citizens National, the Alton National and the Alton Savings, and the Edwardsville National Bank, put up $18,500 each, $50,000 in all, on the security of the building and equipment of the Wood River Bank. This amounted to $101,000, but the relief did not prove adequate, as the withdrawal of accounts and of savings deposits increased to almost the proportions of a run. Rumors as to the bank's difficulties had become widespread, and while there was never a spectacular line of depositors at the bank, the depletion of deposits was rapid.

Cashier Resigned Nov. 1.
Hatridge resigned as cashier Nov. 1. Robert Parks, one of the directors, took his place as cashier. The cashier's resignation caused comment, and a report became current that he had lost $15,000 or more in one of his outside enterprises.

AUTO TRUCK USED TO PURSUE STEER THROUGH STREETS

Commercial Vehicle Replaces Mustangs and Stockyards Cowboys of Other Days.

In the "old days" when a Texas steer, desperately seeking to return to the freedom of the range, escaped from a packing plant and went "on the rampage" through city streets, the policeman would automatically reach for a telephone to summon cowboys from the National Stockyards at East St. Louis.

They would come on their cow ponies, many wearing the chaps and wide brimmed soft hats of the plains. Crowds would congregate in safe but advantageous points to witness the chase. It was not unusual on such occasions for schools in the neighborhood to dismiss, so the children might view the spectacle of the Wild West brought to their front door.

But commercialism has invaded the realm of "city roundups." When a steer escaped from the McHenry Packing Co., 3521 Cote Brillante avenue, at 3:45 p. m., yesterday, an automobile truck replaced the mustang in the pursuit. The animal ran north on Prairie avenue to Maffitt avenue, east to Grand boulevard, south to Cass avenue and started westward, probably having the Texas Panhandle in mind.

The truck, in close pursuit as pedestrians dashed for safety, was driven against the steer several times in an effort to cripple it. But it arose each of the several times it was knocked down until it finally was roped in front of 3615 Cass avenue. A policeman then shot it, at the request of James McHenry, president of the packing company.

WILLIAM GRAVES SHARP, FORMER AMBASSADOR, DIES
He Had Been Ill for Several Days—Represented U. S. in France During War.

ELVIRA, O., Nov. 17.—William Graves Sharp, former ambassador to France, died at his home here yesterday. Mr. Sharp had been ill for several days. Mr. Sharp, who was 63 years old, spent several months in Europe last summer in the interest of his health, and, according to friends, had not been very well thereafter.

All of Sharp's children were summoned to his bedside late yesterday, when his condition became serious. Mr. Sharp was American ambassador to France five years, serving in Paris during the World War. He resigned his post a year after the armistice was signed.

Sharp was born at Mt. Gilead, O., and was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1881 and was admitted to the bar of Ohio.

ALOE DEMANDS STEPS TO REOPEN GAS RATE INQUIRY

City Counselor Says City Is Prepared to Check Process When Commission Is Ready to Proceed With Valuation.

POST-DISPATCH EDITORIAL CITED

Aloe Calls Haid's Attention to Recent Lack of Earnings; Latter Admits He Has No Figures to Controvert Them.

Acting Mayor Aloe today summoned City Counselor Haid to his office and, in the presence of newspaper men, demanded that he take steps to reopen the recent Public Service Commission investigation into rates of the Laclede Gas Light Co. for rates charged St. Louis household consumers.

He exhibited to Haid a copy of an editorial in the Post-Dispatch of yesterday in which the failure of the City Counselor and C. E. Smith, consulting engineer, to demand vigorously that rates should be lowered, was the subject of adverse comment.

Haid replied that the commission had no information on the valuation of the company to combat its figures, which ranged from $43,000,000 to $63,000,000, according to various bases and theories which were applied. He said that the commission had failed to proceed in the matter of the Laclede valuation, but that at such time as the commission should proceed, the city was prepared to check the process.

Acting Mayor Aloe expressed the opinion that someone, in addition to Smith, should be employed by the city to represent it in the case. Haid agreed to that proposal, but added that it would take money. Aloe responded that he, for one, was ready to provide the money.

Aloe then called Haid's attention to recent Laclede earnings as set forth in the Post-Dispatch editorial, and that Smith might throw some light on them, but that he could not.

"You have no figures to controvert them, have you?" Aloe asked. Haid said that he had not.

Haid said the commission felt that it had neglected valuations in smaller communities in the State to attend to valuations in the cities, which accounted for failure to value the Laclede.

Aloe replied that the city of St. Louis was ready and had supported its own commission, but that this power had been taken away by the State commission law. He said that, regardless of what the commission did, he desired that the city proceed in the case.

$35-a-Week Woman Cashier Accused of Being Short $58,000

MISS NORA B. SHANTZ.

"TADPOLE" BALLOON AT SCOTT FIELD

It Is Recent Development for Observation Work—Unusual Altitude Power.

A new observation balloon of the "tadpole" shape, a recent development in military aeronautics, has been received at Scott Field, the army's lighter-than-air aviation training station.

The balloon has a capacity of 50,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, and is approximately 70 feet long by 40 feet wide. It represents a combination of ideas, being, however, chiefly Italian in design. It is similar to the "sausage" type, but it is broader in comparison to its length than is that other type. At the rear, the balloon is tapered, and the rudder downward from the bag, giving the balloon stability in the air at the expense of appearance. These bulges give a queer grotesqueness of contour, both to this balloon and its "sausage" predecessor. Filled with compressed air, they are, however, essential in holding the ship in position. Otherwise, it would act, aviation officers say, after the fashion of a kite without a tail.

With two observers in the basket, this balloon is said to have an altitude power of 7500 feet, whereas the ordinary observation balloons rise only 5000 feet under similar conditions.

No extreme altitudes will be tried for until a stronger cable is obtained. The ordinary observation balloon uses a five-millimeter steel cable, whereas this, with about 15,000 more cubic feet of gas, will require a three-eighths inch cable.

The balloon was made by the Connecticut Air Craft Co. at New Haven, Conn., and cost $6500.

GOVERNMENT TO PUSH BOSCH MAGNETO CASE

Will Proceed With Action, Following Grand Jury's Finding of Conspiracy Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Government will proceed at once to bring requisite action in the Bosch Magneto case in whatever jurisdiction the alleged conspiracy reported by the Federal grand jury here today occurred. It was stated officially at the Department of Justice. The grand jury found evidence of a conspiracy in the sale by a former alien property custodian of the stock and patents of the company to private individuals, but declared that the conspiracy had not occurred within this jurisdiction.

Officials here declined to indicate where the intended proceedings would be filed, declaring it would not be proper to discuss them in advance of such action. The report of the grand jury, however, they said, made it essential for the Government to proceed further in the case.

MIDSHIPMAN WHO TESTIFIED IN HAZING CASE RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The resignation from the Annapolis Naval Academy of Midshipman Wendell B. Allen Jr., of Dewey, Ok., tendered after he had charged he was a victim of hazing, will be accepted by President Harding. Navy Department officials said today a decision had been reached.

Midshipman Allen testified yesterday that he had been the victim of physical violence in hazing escapades by upper-classmen, and following the trial of George M. Lord of Honolulu, who was charged with improper conduct in connection with Allen's charges, the Oklahoma youth submitted his resignation to the Academy authorities.

It was explained that his position in the Academy was insupportable after he had testified before a court martial. Under rules of the institution, the resignation must be acted upon by the Navy Department headquarters.

Reference to Double Books.
"I want to work for the clothing company as a bookkeeper five years ago at $18 a week and my salary was raised gradually until it reached $35 a week in 1920. Shortly after I got the job I discovered that all entries of the company's business were not going through my books and I spoke to Epstein about it. He told me to keep quiet.

SHORTAGE PREVENTED PROFIT, EMPLOYER SAYS

Miss Nora Shantz Asserts Trouble Dates Back to Photographing by Her of Records She Didn't Make.

Styles and prices of men's and boys' clothing were forgotten momentarily today by the proprietors of the Knickerbocker Clothing Co., 1310 Washington avenue, while they discussed the case of their former confidential clerk, Miss Nora B. Shantz, who, as first told exclusively in the home edition of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, is accused by Albert F. Epstein, the company's treasurer, of being $58,000 short in her accounts.

Epstein and the company's lawyer, A. M. Furmberg, told the Circuit Attorney that Miss Shantz, although her salary was only $35 a week, lived in a $25,000 residence at 66 Aberdeen place, in Hillcrest, furnished at a cost of about $15,000, and owned an automobile.

On the other hand, Miss Shantz, who is 29 years old and full of spunk, declares that Epstein has lied about her, that she never stole a penny of the company's money and that he kept a double set of books.

Miss Shantz Makes Denial.
The grand jury will thresh out the controversy next week and, meanwhile, Miss Shantz is at liberty under a $2500 bond, an information charging her with third degree forgery having been issued.

"Do I look like I stole $58,000?" Miss Shantz asked reporters, directing attention to her costume, which she said was medium priced. "Albert Epstein is the biggest liar on Washington avenue and I will prove it when I go to trial."

"He kept two sets of books, and frequently ordered me to raise amounts on checks. Little did I think at the time that he was saying a plot to trap me."

"What that woman said about me is absolutely false and contemptible," said Epstein. "She kept all the books of the company with the exception of a small separate account we had with some merchandise contractors who used our sales force. We made returns on no profits last year because she was $58,000 short. How could we show profit when she was short so much?"

Didn't Buy Home, She Says.
Miss Shantz was interviewed by reporters in the office of her attorney, Edward W. Forstel, when she went there yesterday afternoon to arrange bond. She was attired in a black velvet suit, white waist and a black velvet hat trimmed with plumes.

"I want you to be sure to say that I do not look like a chicken," she said, because Epstein has tried to make it appear that I was flying high on the firm's money. That is not so. I have been careful of every nickel I spent, and I lived always within my income.

"I did not purchase that $25,000 house in Hillcrest. I merely held an option to purchase it. I lived there with my mother for a year, and I thought that if I could sell it at a profit I wanted to be in a position to make the deal.

MUSSOLINI HAD TO HAVE HOUR OF FENCING BEFORE HE MADE ADDRESS AS PREMIER

ROME, Nov. 17.—BENITO MUSSOLINI, the Italian Premier, keeps in the pink of physical condition, despite the tremendous amount of mental work of 15 to 18 hours daily which he performs. He insists on 60 full minutes of hard fencing every morning.

He had his customary exercise yesterday before he entered the Chamber of Deputies to deliver his first address as head of the Italian Government.

When his fencing masters telephoned to ask whether the Premier would fence as usual, Mussolini replied: "Certainly, in this is not the day of battle."

HOME LIABLE TO SEARCH ON CHARGE OF LIQUOR MAKING

Judge Faris Rules That Manufacturing Makes It in Part a Shop, and So Affected by Law.

Federal Judge Faris today held that a search warrant to enter a home may be issued when declaration is made that liquor is being manufactured in the home.

He reached this decision by the reasoning that manufacture of liquor constitutes an operation of an industry, such as is carried on in a shop, upon the basis that the Volstead act provides for the issuance of a search warrant for a home being used in part as a shop.

The Judge's ruling was made on a motion to suppress evidence against Nick Kotas, charged with manufacturing liquor in his home, who was arrested under a search warrant. Counsel for the defendant argued that the search warrant should not have been issued unless the sale of liquor in the home was suspected. The Judge overruled the motion.

Judge Faris, in his opinion, said that he had called to his attention only two holdings on this specific phase of the Volstead act—one by Federal Judge Foster of New Orleans, who held, as Judge Faris did, that such a search was authorized, and the other Federal Judge Fitzgibbon of Illinois, who held such a search was unauthorized.

Quoted Volstead Law.
Judge Faris stated that a warrant was issued to search the Kotas residence because, it was alleged, liquor was being manufactured there unlawfully, but without allegation that liquor was being sold there. He quoted a clause of the Volstead law which provides that a search warrant cannot be issued for a residence unless intoxicating liquor is being sold there unlawfully.

But, he added, there is a further proviso in the law, which does permit search of a residence that is being used "in part for some business purpose, such as a store, shop, saloon, restaurant, hotel or boarding house."

He went on to say that excuse for the search of the Kotas home would have to be found, if at all, under the clause providing for search of a home used in part for business. There was no question in this case, he said, that the Kotas house was being used as a saloon, restaurant, hotel or boarding house. "I take it that, if it is not being used as a shop," he added, "then the question arises whether it was being used as a shop."

He said he determined that the special business purpose alone was in question, and proceeded to limit his words of the statute to the word "shop." None of the other words applied to the business of making illicit whiskey in a home, he held.

SULTAN FLEES FROM CAPITAL ON A BRITISH BATTLESHIP

Mohammed VI, on Boarding Vessel Bound for Malta, Emphasizes That He Is Not Abdicating Turkish Throne but Removing Himself From Immediate Danger.

FLIGHT FOLLOWS VOTE TO PUT HIM ON TRIAL

Angora Assembly Adopts Resolution to Try Him and All His Ministers; Nationalists to Demand Reparations From Greeks.

By the Associated Press. CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 17.—Mohammed VI, the Turkish Sultan, has fled from Constantinople on a British warship bound for Malta. Upon embarking the Sultan emphasized that he was not abdicating, but merely removing himself from immediate danger.

The Sultan wrote to Lieutenant-General Harington, the British Commander-in-Chief, on Wednesday evening, stating that he considered his life to be in danger and would like British protection.

The National Assembly at Angora has adopted a resolution, submitted by Mustafa Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, to place the Sultan and his Ministers on trial. A decision as to the method of enforcing the resolution was deferred.

The Sultan did not propose to leave the palace before Friday and arrangements were made accordingly. This morning a car, in which were the acting dragoman of the British Embassy and Gen. Harington's aid, drew up at the side entrance to the Sultan's palace.

He and Son Slip Into Auto.
While the guard was being changed the Sultan, with his son Prince Brigrul Effendi, and six members of the palace staff, slipped quietly into the car and drove to the British naval base, where Gen. Harington and Neville Henderson, acting British High Commissioner, received him.

The Sultan embarked on the Admiral's barge. He was rowed out to the British dreadnaught Malaya, where he was received by Vice Admiral Brock. Commissioner Henderson gave the Sultan a welcome in the name of King George upon the Turkish monarch's setting his foot on British territory. The Sultan replied that he felt safe under the protection of Great Britain, adding that he was not abdicating, but was merely removing himself from the danger which was immediately threatening.

The Malaya steamed off immediately for Malta, where instructions will be received as to the eventual destination of the Sultan.

Feared Ordeal of Selamk.
Apparently the Sultan did not wish to face the ordeal of the Selamk or official attendance of the Sultan at a mosque, which occurs on Friday, the Mohammedan Sabbath, at noon. The Selamk last Friday was a somewhat pathetic spectacle, which the Sultan carried through with courage and dignity, but it is thought he feared an attempt would be made upon his life on the next occasion.

Up to 1 o'clock this afternoon officials at the palace adopted the course of denying that the sovereign had left. When they were asked why the usual Friday Selamk was not held they answered that the Sultan was suffering from a bad cold.

Egyptians to Try to Place Demands Before Lausanne Conference.
By the Associated Press. LAUSANNE, Nov. 17.—Real independence for Egypt and the Sudan, with the evacuation of the British troops and no special privileges there for Great Britain, is the demand of the Egyptian people which will be placed before the Lausanne peace conference, Hassan Pasha, head of the unofficial Egyptian delegation, told the Associated Press yesterday. His statement revealed that Egypt, if the Egyptians have their way, will form one of the problems of the conference.

Hassan, who was former Minister of Public Works, said his great aim was to develop direct economic relations with the United States at this conference. He added that he hoped to see the United States.

MUSSOLINI SCORES GREAT PERSONAL SUCCESS BY TALK

Congratulations Showed Upon Fascist Premier Following First Speech to Chamber of Deputies.

MINISTER DEMANDS VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

"It Was Not Programs Which Were Lacking in Italy, but Men and Will," He Says.

Rome, Nov. 17.—Premier Mussolini's first appearance before the Italian Chamber proved a great personal success. He spoke to the deputies as he had addressed the leaders of his Fascist legions and his orders were received with similar obedience.

He announced his foreign and internal policies and warned his adversaries that the Fascist Government had come to stay. He did not ask, but demanded, a vote of confidence in his government, declaring that if the deputies refused, their mandates would be withdrawn. His bitterest enemies were disappointed and his friends are saying he is the greatest leader Italy has seen since Cavour and that the Fascist rule will endure.

Shower of Congratulations.—Congratulations were showered upon him after he had concluded his exposition of the Government's program, all the parliamentary groups joined in the applause with the exception of the extremists, who abstained from displaying any emotion. In the lobby afterward the expression was heard many times repeated that, in Mussolini, Italy had found the leader for which she had been looking many years.

One of the deputies exclaimed to the Premier: "He reminded me of Louis XIV—'L'Etat, C'est moi.'" (The state, I am the state.)

Premier Mussolini has expressed the desire that only one orator from each of the 11 groups in the Chamber be allowed to speak before the vote of confidence is taken.

Old Left Silenced.—Socialists and Communists, numbering 118, who have greeted every succeeding Government with violent and noisy demonstrations of opposition, sat in the chamber silent and without a word.

Orlando, Salandra, Facta and Bonomi, saw their power wane from them; they were relegated to second place without uttering a single objection.

The Premier's entrance to the crowded chamber was hailed with cheers. The points of his speech meeting with special approval were his declaration that he did not need a majority in Parliament, his tribute to the King, his reference to the army and its order and discipline in the country.

The Premier then went to the throne and delivered the same speech, being greeted with no less enthusiasm.

"Men and Will Needed."—"With a strong will," he said, "I think that we can make many of our apprehensions disappear. Our foreign policy is based on a sense of peace which will be good of bad, but since they have been signed and ratified they must be applied. A respectable state can have no other doctrine."

"It is better to make commercial treaties in place of holding grandiose conferences which are useless."

SULTAN FLEES FROM CONSTANTINOPLE ON BRITISH WARSHIP

America would stand by Egypt in her demands for freedom. His colleagues around him interjected words of admiration for the United States, seemingly making it evident that at Lausanne, as at Paris, all nations seeking fulfillment of their aspirations will look yearningly toward the United States.

Paris, Nov. 17.—Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation to the Lausanne conference, has told the Associated Press that the Nationalists expect to obtain reparations from Greece as well as payment for the allied occupation of the last four years.

BOND ISSUE PLAN BEFORE BOARD OF ALDERMEN TODAY

Passage of Ordinance Authorizing Special Election Feb. 9, Recommended in Committee Report.

STUDENT KILLED, SEVERAL HURT, IN LABORATORY BLAST

Explosion in Chemical Room of Columbia University Hall, New York, Causes One Instant Death.

Passage of the municipal bond issue ordinance, authorizing a special election Feb. 9 on 21 public improvement proposals aggregating $38,372,500, is recommended in a report to be submitted today to the Board of Aldermen by the Special Bond Issue Committee of the board.

The report was approved yesterday. The bill is scheduled to go before the board today for passage. All hearings have been held and the bill is expected to go through without alteration.

After passage the bill will be approved immediately. Acting Mayor Ales said today, so that it can be certified to the Board of Election Commissioners. The bill carries an emergency clause making it effective after approval.

The committee report stresses the point that if the voters authorize the bond issue, by the necessary two-thirds majority, all of the bonds voted would not be issued at one time. The 21 public improvement proposals are planned for a 10-year building program, and 20-year serial bonds are to be issued in blocks only as needed.

"After authorization is given by the people for the issuance of bonds, the money can be expended only when appropriation ordinances are passed by the Board of Aldermen," the report states, "and such appropriation ordinances must state in detail in what manner the amount is to be expended."

"This board and the public will have opportunity to express their views as regards the details of all the expenditures and to check and compare such expenditures with the detailed program outlined in this official report."

Following legal requirements for such measures the 21 proposals in general terms, no itemized details of the proposed improvements being given. For instance, Proposition 1 provides $3,550,000 under the general heading of establishing, opening and widening streets. Plans for this work include 27 projects.

Proposition 9 provides $1,300,000 under the general heading of improvement of existing parks and playgrounds, but the detailed plans include 21 projects.

This detail on each item is given in the committee report with a recommendation that it be made a matter of official record in the journal of the Board of Aldermen. This record to stand as a binding obligation upon the Mayor, the Board of Aldermen, and upon every department head, but of future administrations which may have to do with expenditure of funds derived from the issue, thereby giving assurance that bond-issue funds will not be appropriated for purposes other than intended.

Citizens' Committee Asked For.—The report urged adoption of a recommendation by the General Council on Civic Needs, a citizen group which submitted the bond issue program to the Board of Aldermen, that a citizens' supervisory committee be appointed to have general supervision of the expenditure of bond issue funds.

Such a proposal cannot be included in the bill, but has been approved by Mayor Kiel and connected with the bond issue movement. The report suggested that the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen be a member of the Supervisory Committee.

Public hearings were conducted on the bond program for four weeks by the Special Bond Issue Committee before its report was prepared.

The 12 Aldermen comprising the committee are: President Ales, Chairman; Edward L. Kuba, First Ward; William F. Niederlecker, Second Ward; John A. Pett, Eleventh Ward; Joseph R. Heckel, Thirteenth Ward; W. Chiemeyer, Fifteenth Ward; Adam Reis, Sixteenth Ward; J. Studt, Seventeenth Ward; C. E. "Dell" Twenty-first Ward; Sylvester A. Nangis, Twenty-fifth Ward; Ralph H. Eilers, Twenty-sixth Ward; and Samuel L. Wimer, Twenty-seventh.

showed total resources of $348,985.33, including these items: Cash, $20,000; sums due from other cities, $492,692; real estate loans, $120,258; bond account, $104,854; building, $31,377; equipment, $37,000; school warrants on hand, $23,575.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—St. Louis' prospects of becoming a great aviation center, and incidentally landing the National Aeronautical Association's 1923 meet, would probably be increased, according to H. E. Hartney, acting General Manager of the National Aeronautical Association, if it would follow the example of Chicago and some other cities and form an Air Board, composed of representatives of the leading service and commercial organizations.

The Chicago Air Board, created about two years ago, has members of 41 organizations, including the City Council, Association of Commerce, City Plan Commission, Aero Club of Illinois, Illinois Manufacturers' Association, Woman's City Club, Engineers' Club, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Advertising Men's Club. Its purpose is to "place Chicago in the lead in aeronautics."

Other cities with similar organizations are Milwaukee, Los Angeles, San Antonio, Atlanta and Birmingham.

Gives Official Status.—"A city with an Air Board," said Hartney today, "has an organization always in readiness to go after desirable aviation meets and to take care of them after they are landed. An Air Board is useful in giving an official status to aeronautics, in seeing that the Mayor and City Council are properly advised on aeronautic problems and in strengthening the membership and interest in all aeronautic organizations in its territory. Detroit felt the need of an Air Board in planning for the aeronautical meet this year."

"An Air Board may be appointed either by the Mayor of a city or by the Chamber of Commerce. Our experience has shown that the latter is likely to be the better method."

Discussing next year's air meet, for which St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City appear at present to be the principal contenders, Hartney said that the wishes of Lieut. R. L. Maughan, winner of this year's Pulitzer race, might have a good deal to do with the choice of a location. As explained by Hartney and by Maj. David W. Davidson, chief of the Army Air Service, it is the practice of the service to give equal preference to the city twice when it was proffered for examination and when it was tendered for acceptance and the day closed without any additions to the panel of four which was accepted the day before.

Of the 13 men examined yesterday seven were farmers, five were miners or farmer-miners and one was a merchant with a mining patronage. The first panel offered by the State for examination included three miners who had been examined by the State the day before and one farmer examined yesterday. The defense handed the panel back unimpaired.

The State had to use peremptories on Amos Anderson and Henry Jarvis, miners. The panel was filled with Jeff King and W. H. Davidson, farmers, but the defense drew from King an expression of fear-in-law and from Davidson a statement that he would not examine him in the least in his own associations. He declared that he had an opinion. He was peremptorily challenged by the State. The excuse of Taylor broke the full panel in the jury box, and after a conference by agreement to complete the examination of the four remaining men in the box, although the box was not filled.

Jeff Swafford, a Herrin miner, who held an opinion to guilt or innocence, was excused for cause. Roy Williams, 33, a lifelong farmer, who had expressed an opinion, was excused.

Farmers Predominate.—Farmers predominated in the jury for the first time in the history of the H. E. Hartney prosecution. The defense by three times proffering panels of four for examination and finally, just before adjournment, accepting a panel of four and tendering it to the defense.

The defense, however, broke the NOV. 22

Passage of the municipal bond issue ordinance, authorizing a special election Feb. 9 on 21 public improvement proposals aggregating $38,372,500, is recommended in a report to be submitted today to the Board of Aldermen by the Special Bond Issue Committee of the board.

The report was approved yesterday. The bill is scheduled to go before the board today for passage. All hearings have been held and the bill is expected to go through without alteration.

After passage the bill will be approved immediately. Acting Mayor Ales said today, so that it can be certified to the Board of Election Commissioners. The bill carries an emergency clause making it effective after approval.

The committee report stresses the point that if the voters authorize the bond issue, by the necessary two-thirds majority, all of the bonds voted would not be issued at one time. The 21 public improvement proposals are planned for a 10-year building program, and 20-year serial bonds are to be issued in blocks only as needed.

"After authorization is given by the people for the issuance of bonds, the money can be expended only when appropriation ordinances are passed by the Board of Aldermen," the report states, "and such appropriation ordinances must state in detail in what manner the amount is to be expended."

Following legal requirements for such measures the 21 proposals in general terms, no itemized details of the proposed improvements being given. For instance, Proposition 1 provides $3,550,000 under the general heading of establishing, opening and widening streets. Plans for this work include 27 projects.

$43,500 INSURANCE LEFT TO FAMILY BY TRUCK DRIVER

Obsession Was Provision for Dependents After Death,
Though It Meant Great Hardship for Him and Them.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT WHEN HE WAS ONLY 38

Put Every Cent He Could Spare Above Bare Necessities Into Premiums, Peddled Ice Cream in Cart and Children Sold Papers.

The small-town folk who watched him say that "Willy Dunham charged along with head down and hands working night and day because he wanted to leave his babies well fixed," though he kept his own nose to the grindstone all his life even to the end.

He had little time for talking, and no time at all for play. His babies in life were so very meager that he saw no chance for a mortal coup. So Willy gamed with death in the only way he knew—life insurance.

They took William Dunham from under the wreckage of his cheaply improved oil truck on a street corner in Jerseyville, Ill., last week. His body was clad in blue jeans without undergar or socks. "Willy" Dunham's headlong, tollsome struggles for life insurance were over. He had died in the dirt and grease in the truck which he had followed for 20 years. He was only 38 years old.

When Judge White, named by the widow as her attorney, opened "Willy" Dunham's safe deposit box he found insurance policies amounting to $15,000. Some of the policies had lapsed through default of premium payments and one carried a double indemnity clause in case of accidental death. When it all has been straightened out William Dunham's widow and her seven children will receive about $43,500.

"You see," the husband had often said to neighbors, "if a man carries all the insurance he's able to carry a man is looking after his wife and kids the best he knows how. I ain't going to be here always."

Widow Keeps Up Hard Work.
Yesterday, in the little store-home of William Dunham, his widow sold cigars and tobacco while five of the Dunham youngsters were at school. A visitor might have sensed that the desperate, driving spirit of the vanished master still moved Mrs.

Although the widow's father-in-law tells her that she has enough to do to care for seven children and she should take it easy with her new riches, she declares she is going to keep up the business of Dunham & Son, the son being Dunham's 18-year-old boy.

There is a wealth of information in Jerseyville concerning the business of Dunham & Son.

"Willy" Dunham came to the town to work on Ed Paul's dairy farm about five years ago. He used to start to work at 1 o'clock in the morning and work until 9 o'clock at night. For this work he was paid about $25 a week. But Dunham soon showed his new neighbors that this was not enough money for him. He was not content with the $25 a week.
Pretty soon Jerseyville knew why.

The report got out that William Dunham was carrying $100,000 in life insurance.

When questioned about this Dunham dropped the figure to "about $25,000," but intimated that "a man ought to carry all he's able." That was enough. There were many insurance agents in Jerseyville. "Willy" Dunham's name went down on prospect lists with a red star before it.

Peddled Ice Cream in Street more work. He went into a partnership with Paul in the manufacture and sale of ice cream. So on summer evenings, when the stretch from 1 a.
m. to 3 p. m. at the dairy was over,
"Willy" Dunham got out his ice cream wagon and sold cones through the streets of Jerseyville until everybody went to bed. When the oldest boy, Rupert, became old enough he was equipped with an ice cream wagon, too. For Cecil, 9 years old, and Alma, 11 years old, there were peppermint sticks. Seven-year-old Tressie and 4-year-old Velda also worked as soon as they had approximated these present ages.

put aside to give her comfort after he was dead could not be used to better purpose now.

Men saw Dunham coming in from the dairy during sultry summer evenings—head down, open shoes flapping against bare feet and a tattered hat held clutched in his hand —and asked him when he ever slept.

"I get two or three hours' sleep," he would reply, cheerfully enough.
"That's all a man needs."
Sometimes he would slip into a chair in front of the Colonial Hotel or slide along a baggage truck on the platform at the C. & A. depot with the timid remark: "Carry much life insurance?"

Generally citizens of Jerseyville would respond in the negative. Then Dunham would shake his head and look at the callouses on his hands, would say: "Best thing a man can do. We ain't going to be here all the time. I have my babies to look after. I guess there ain't no better way, is there?"

Parker Dunham, a retired farmer, often remonstrated with his son.
"I've got it figured out, I guess, Poppy," the reply was wont to be.
"Some of these first policies are going to mature pretty soon. I won't be so pinched then."

However dubious Jerseyville seemed to be concerning the wisdom of Dunham's plan the town accordingly admired. People leave Mrs. Dunham little presents as the babies came along and many sent over from the other side of town for groceries from Dunham & Son. Dunham sent his children to school and Sunday school and dressed his family better than he dressed himself.

Accident Cuts Down Policies.
Last December "Willy" Dunham carried about $50,000 in life insurance policies. He had insured his wife for $1000, Rupert for $1000 and had taken out smaller policies for the other children. Insurance agents estimate that the weekly premiums on his burden amounted to $27.50 a week or $1430 a year.

Nobody but the Dunhams can explain how they managed to get that much money together and live.
Then Dunham shot himself accidentally while putting a cartridge in a rusty revolver. He was sick for two months. In spite of the small assistance he was able to muster, $12,000 of the insurance lapsed.
As soon as he was about again, the drive to save the remainder of the policies continued. Dunham had decided and decided to sell oil. He had been interested in oil speculation as a means of getting more insurance. It is said that he owns some leases in Texas.

Having decided to go into the oil business Dunham bought an old Ford and fixed the body so that he could carry two 50-gallon steel barrels behind.

Jerseyville people say that "Willy" would travel two miles to sell a gallon of cylinder oil.
But the "oil truck" turned over a few weeks ago and bruised its driver badly. Dunham went on with his work despite his suffering from his injuries.

"Why don't you let the old insurance go, Willy?" his father says he asked him.

"Something Might Happen to Me!"
"I can't drop it, Poppy," Dunham replied. "Something might happen

'FRIEND IN GUTTER' MESSAGE LURED MAN TO DEATH

Proprietor of Saloon Where Theodore Lange Got Call Says He Borrowed Auto to Go to Give Help.

A tele phone message, to the effect that one of his friends was lying drunk in a gutter, was the means by which Theodore A. Lange was lured from a saloon at 1108 South Fourth street to Tenth and LaSalle streets, where he was shot to death
Wednesday night.

This developed in the more recent investigation into the murder of Lange, and in advance of the Coroner's inquest, beginning today.

The first accounts of the telephone message by which Lange was called away from the bar stated that he was summoned to LaSalle street to "meet some friends." When questioned further, the saloon proprietor, Raymond Bickerton, said the message, as repeated to him by Lange, was that a friend was in the gutter.

Lange borrowed Bickerton's automobile to go to the rescue of the supposed drunken friend, and take him home. Lange was driving the borrowed car when a man leaped from another car, believed to have been a Ford coupe, and shot him.

Statement by Man Named.
The man who was named in the telephone message, as being drunk, told policemen yesterday that he was at his home, on South Ninth street, in bed, after 8:30 o'clock on the night in question, and was not drinking. The killing of Lange was at 10:40.

The police this afternoon released
Frank Eppelsheimer Jr. and Robert Giesecke, who had been held for questioning in the Lange case. The two are under bond for a murder or a murder there are general orders to stop people, and many people cross that bridge. Therefore, the ruling as to arrests on suspicion could not apply to a case of this sort.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Dyott replied that the men had been arrested after they tried to make a "getaway" and that the liquor was found then. He contended that that gave the right to arrest. The judge, sustaining the motion and dismissing the charge, said:

"No, I will not hold with you there, for that gives too much room for the exercise of police discretion and for perjury. I may as well frankly say I have not yet reached the point where I am willing to trample on the constitutional rights of citizens to enforce even a law so highly moral as the Volstead act."

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR'S TRIAL

Opening of Case Set for Wednesday;

OKMULGEE, Ok., Nov. 17.—Trial of Gov. J. E. A. Robertson of Oklahoma on charge of accepting a bribe to permit operation of an Okmulgee bank, which, it is alleged, he knew to be insolvent, yesterday was ordered to be held in Pontotoc County, and the date for the opening of the case was fixed tentatively for next Wednesday. Judge Thomas A. Edwards of Cordell will preside at the trial.

The executive scored his second legal victory since his indictment by a District Court grand jury here when he succeeded in having the case taken out of Okmulgee County, where he alleges public sentiment is such that he could not receive a fair trial. His first victory was recorded several weeks ago when the State Supreme Court granted his request to disqualify District Judge Mark L. Bozarth of Okmulgee County to sit in the proceedings.

CLEMENCEAU SIGNS SNAPSHOTS SOLD AT AUCTION ON SHIP

By FERDINAND TUOHY.
ON BOARD STEAMSHIP PARIS,
Nov. 17.—Clemenceau spent the hour before lunch yesterday packing the deck arm-in-arm with a prominent member of a famous American banking firm, who told the "Tiger" he thought the immediate future of Europe looked very black.

Owing to the sickness of all the operative stars scheduled for the concert, the proposed ship concert was abandoned and an auction held instead. Clemenceau presided and signed 11 snapshots which sold for an average of $20.

Later, he visited Miss Anne Morgan in her salon, which she has not quit since the voyage started. The weather continues rough, but it is hoped Paris will be able to dock at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

On landing, Clemenceau wishes to drive immediately to the home of Charles Dana Gibson. He says that during the next two days he wants to see New York, especially the Washington Square district, where he lived during his sojourn in America, more than half a century ago. He also wants to visit the Metropolitan Opera House to study its acoustics.

New York may be unfavorably impressed when it sees Clemenceau hobbling painfully along. This, however, is his one infirmity, gout.

what the police told them and to hold a grudge against Lange.
Eppelsheimer and Giesecke, when questioned yesterday, gave detailed accounts of their movements of the night before. Members of the homicide squad were sent out to check up these reports and they have reported that they found the stories apparently correct.

Giesecke, whose Ford coupe had been in use shortly before the police arrested him at his home, 3216A North Eleventh street, said he spent the evening at a dice game in Venice, Ill., had lunch at a restaurant at 10:30 p. m., following his return to St. Louis, and got home at 11. He said he hid in an attic when the police came to the home because his mother told him to do so.

Eppelsheimer, who is 18 years old and lives at 1121 Ferry street, said he called at a physician's office Wednesday night, was at a restaurant near the North St. Louis water-tower at the time of the killing, and was at home by 11. He said the attention in which he was found was his sleeping room and that he was not hiding there.

Two others are under arrest on suspicion in connection with the Lange case.

SCHWAB HAS NO "DEFINITE" JOB

Explains "I Am Nominally Chairman of the Board."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Questioned as to his occupation when he took the stand before the Federal Trade Commission today, Charles M. Schwab replied: "No definite occupation," but as an after-thought, he added: "I am nominally chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; practically, I am retired steel manufacturer."

In response to many questions, Schwab replied: "I don't remember —that's too long ago," or concerning selling methods. "You will have to ask our sales agent." He testified the "Pittsburg plus" plan of basing steel prices on conditions in the Pittsburgh market had no arbitrary effect on prices.

RETURN TO CENTRAL FIELD PLAN BEFORE NINE WAGE MEETING

National and District Methods for Reaching Agreement Rejected at Conference.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—National and district plans for wage agreements in the coal industry were voted down by the joint meeting of representatives of the bituminous operators and organized miners of the country today. A motion for a return to the old central competitive field wage base method was before the body when adjournment was taken to permit the operators to discuss that proposal among themselves.

The central competitive field plan favored by the miners and also advised to have the support of some of the operators, as well as an augmented central field to include West Virginia and Kentucky along with the original states of Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois, were among the proposals before the subcommittees of operators and miners who failed to agree yesterday.

CAPT. BERRY INDICTED ON THIRD DEGREE ARSON CHARGE

Action Result of Fire Which Started in Balloon Pilot's Aviation School Oct. 31.

Capt. John Berry, 74 years old, veteran balloon pilot, has been indicted on a charge of arson in the third degree, as the result of the fire which started in his aviation and automobile repair school, the afternoon of Oct. 31, while frozen and detectives were waiting in the neighborhood in the expectation that a fire would occur.

The police had been informed of Don Scarborough, Berry's assistant, of the alleged plan to set fire to the place. Berry, after his arrest, denied knowing anything of the origin of the fire. He had $2000 insurance on the equipment and contents of his

LAWYER SUES FOR $20,000 FEES

Claims Money by Alleged Agreement With McQuay-Norris Co.

A suit for $20,000, claimed as ad-vocate's fees, was filed today in Circuit Court against the McQuay-Norris Co. of St. Louis by John H.
Cassidy, a lawyer.

He alleges that in 1921 he was asked by the company to advise it how it could recover taxes on piston rings and that he did disclose the way. His agreement, he alleges, was that he was to receive 10 per cent of the amount of taxes recovered as his fees.

Subsequently, he declares, the company proceeded the collection of the taxes "behind his back." It has received or is about to receive a tax refund of $200,000, he declares.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 17.—A new international railroad from Duluth to Port Arthur, Canada, will be constructed by Minnesota interests if negotiations under way for purchase of an old logging road go through. A group of Minneapolis and Duluth capitalists are now negotiating with the Weyerhaeuser interests for the Duluth & Minnesota Northern line about 100 miles long in the northern part of the state. If the deal goes through this road will be extended to Port Arthur, thus connecting by rail two of the greatest ports on the Great Lakes.

MRS. BEVERLY D. HARRIS GETS $2000 FOR FEES AND EXPENSES

Award Made to Enable Her to Finance Legal Action She Says Is Necessary to Refute Husband's Charges.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Beverly D. Harris, wife of a former vice president of the National City Bank, who is suing her for annulment of their marriage, yesterday was awarded $2000 counsel fees and $1000 for expenses by Supreme Court Justice Wagner. Harris is seeking an annulment on the ground that he was deceived as to his wife's former social standing in Austin, Tex., and Memphis, Tenn.

The fees and allowance were granted in order to further her funds to finance legal action necessary, she said, to refute her husband's contentions. She has attempted several times in Municipal Court to obtain payment on four promissory notes alleged to be due under an earlier separation agreement.

AGENCIES UNITE TO SUPPORT PLAN FOR PSYCHIATRIC CLINIC

Representatives of About 15 Organizations Placed on Committee to Wait Upon Nolte.

TRIAL CLINIC ABOUT TO BE REMOVED

Bill Now Before Aldermen Provides for Advisory Board of Seven Members, to Serve Without Pay.

A meeting designed to consolidate agencies for support of the bill introduced to the Board of Aldermen yesterday establishing a psychiatric clinic in connection with St. Louis municipal courts, was held last night in the lecture room of the Second Baptist Church under the auspices of the Missouri Welfare League.

A psychiatric clinic is an organization of physicians and trained social workers for a study of the relation to his offense of mental, physical and environment conditions surrounding the offender.

Its larger function is the correction of these conditions, particularly in juvenile delinquents, as a preventive against further offenses and a probable career of crime.

Trial Clinic to Be Removed.
A demonstrative psychiatric clinic has been attached to the Juvenile Court for the last six months, financed by the Commonwealth Fund of New York and conducted by the National Society for Mental Hygiene. It is the first clinic of its kind in the country. The trial clinic is about to be removed and the aim at this time is that St. Louis establish a permanent clinic along the lines demonstrated by the trial clinic.

The clinic will require an appropriation of between $5000 and $8000 to complete the fiscal year and a budget of about $30,000 for the next year. Opposition at this time seems to center in Comptroller Nolte, who as yet has not said that funds would be available. Members of the Board of Aldermen are refraining from saying whether they will pass the bill, pending some expression from Nolte. Representatives of about 15 organizations last night were placed upon a committee of which Miss Carol Bates of the Missouri Welfare League was made chairman, to wait upon Nolte and state to him the desirability of his finding the needed money.

Address by New York Man.
Dr. V. V. Anderson of New York, director of the division of Mental Hygiene of the National Association, who has conducted the St. Louis demonstration, was chief speaker at last night's meeting.

"There are between 400,000 and 500,000 insane persons in the institutions of this country," Dr. Anderson said. "Fully half that number need not have been there, had there been early recognition and correction of symptoms. People as a whole take the same attitude toward insanity as they did 50 years ago about tuberculosis. Consumption once was something to be spoken of in whispers, its existence in any family to be hid by that family until the sufferer reached acute stages when he was shipped off somewhere to die. Now there seems every promise of complete control of tuberculosis as there has come to be complete control of yellow fever. If the same scientific application were made to the problem of insanity, as great or greater progress could be made towards its eradication. It is much more preventable than many other diseases. There are more beds in the State hospitals of the nation given over to insanity patients than to patients with all other afflictions combined.

Gives Results of Study.
"In a close study of 50,000 school children of the United States it was found that 13 out of every 100 have the potentialities of future social failure because of mental handicaps. Two per cent are feeble-minded and will always remain with the brains of children. Three and one-half per cent show definite conditions that are the forerunners of insanity. These conditions are recognizable and curable. Six per cent show disorders of conduct that are the forerunners of careers of crime.

"Yet we say to those feeble-minded girls: 'We know you are feeble-minded. We know that soon you likely will go out on the streets. We know that you will likely contract some social disease. We will take you in and cure that disease and turn you out again to contract it anew. We know all this. We know how to prevent it, but we haven't the money to do it.'"

"We say to those boys who show early disorders in conduct: 'We know that some day you are likely to graduate from our reform institutions into our penitentiary. We know that sooner or later you will commit some crime. We know how to arrest your progress on such a career. We know what to do, but we have not the money to do it.'"

Judge Garecque's View.
Judge Garecque said that his experience with the experimental clinic had been such that he felt certain that no Judge of the Juvenile Court could function without its aid, advice and scientific determinations.

The bill, as introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday, changes a previous bill to establish an advisory board of seven members, one of which must be a physician, one a psychologist and three women. The board is to be appointed by the Mayor to serve seven years without compensation. The employment of a negro social worker also is made mandatory.

Shopman, 78, Drops Dead.
SEDALIA, Mo., Nov. 17.—H. O. Blakesley, 78 years old, who was working in the Missouri Pacific shop here yesterday morning, dropped dead late yesterday of natural causes. Blakesley came here from St. Louis seven months ago with his 19-year-old wife and two children.

K S D HEARD IN PACIFIC 2372 MILES FROM ST. LOUIS

New Record for Distance by Post-Dispatch Radio Broadcasting Station Reported by Ship Operator.

broadcasting station K S D. Elmer O. Carlson, radio operator on the Standard Oil steamer Col. E. L. Drake, sailing from Los Angeles for Honolulu, reports hearing K S D when 750 miles west of the California coast. His letter reads:

"While tuning for the usual evening's concert from Los Angeles and San Francisco tonight, I brought in a station which I thought to be either of the two, and was very much surprised when the station signed off K S D. During the time of the reception we were 750 miles west of San Francisco bound for the Hawaiian Islands from Los Angeles. Music was loud and clear, using detector and one-step of audio frequency, and the modulation couldn't be better. Our aerial is 100 feet long and 70 feet high. Using two stages of amplification the music was heard clearly 750 feet from the horn. "As the station is fairly bad out here during this time of the year, I haven't listened in a great deal on low wave lengths, but expect that in a month's time it will be reduced sufficiently to give you some good check-ups on your concert. As you are slightly above the average wave length of the phone broadcasting stations I am able to tune you in without any interference whatsoever from San Francisco and Los Angeles stations."

"If it is convenient, please acknowledge reception of this letter."
"ELMER O. CARLSON,
"Radio Operator.
"Standard Oil Co.,
"Richmond, Cal."

The next mail brought another interesting report from British Columbia, which follows:

"Just a few lines to tell you that I received your broadcast of Nov. 5, and that I enjoyed it very much. It has been a record for my set and as I thought it might be one for you also, I thought I would write. "Wishing you all success, K S D, remain, yours sincerely,
"BRUCE M. SUTHERLAND.
"Port Coquitlam,
"British Columbia, Canada."

The Standard Oil steamer was 2372 miles distant, by air line, from the Post-Dispatch building when K S D was heard. Port Coquitlam, British Columbia, is 1652 miles air line from St. Louis. To the northeast K S D has already been reported from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and the Gulf of St. Lawrence. To the southeast, from the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico.

Edward Hartney, 75 years old, who had been in the employ of the city water department for 56 years, died today at his home, 5341 Terry avenue, from the infirmities of age, following an illness of 10 months.

In an examination by the Municipal Efficiency Board in 1916, Hartney gave the following record of his employment in the city service:

Then for 24 years he received $65 a month, his wages being increased to $75 a month at the end of that period. On Aug. 14, 1916, his wages were increased to $125 a month.

For many years he was employed at the high pressure station at 111 Chestnut street, where fellow workmen referred to him as "Pud." He is survived by his widow and two sons, John and Edward Hartney Jr.

Driver to Share Earnings for Five Years; Manslaughter Charge Dropped.

By the Associated Press.
REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Nov. 11.—A charge of manslaughter against John Swanson was dismissed by Superior Judge Buck in court here yesterday, when Swanson agreed to donate one-half of his earnings for the next five years to the widow of James Bolt of this city, who was killed by Swanson's automobile on the night of Sept. 23.

In addition, Swanson agreed to sell his automobile and give the proceeds to the widow. Swanson is a pipe-line worker and earns $5.50 per day.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD FROM ONE DOG TO ANOTHER SAVES LIFE

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 11.—Blood transfusion from the veins of "Apache French," a pedigreed pup, to those of "Major," a Boston bull terrier, has saved the latter's life.

"Major's" illness was caused by swallowing two ice cream spoons, which the veterinarian removed, but the shock and loss of blood nearly caused the death of the patient.

The owner of a large husky dog whose lineage was a trifle doubtful, offered the blood of his pet, but Jack Russell, "Major's" master, refused. "It's going to be blue blood," he said, "anything else would break my dog's heart."

When a pedigreed pup became available, the two dogs were put on the operating table. The transfusion operation took an hour and a half, and both patients are recovering.

CODE DELEGATES
IN FIRST SKIRMISH OVER HOME RULEAdvocates of More Power in Local Affairs for Cities Win by Vote of 28 to 27.By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 11.—Advocates of home rule for Missouri cities over their local affairs won the first skirmish yesterday in the Constitutional Convention. It was a close call, however, for with only 53 of the 83 delegates present and voting, home-rule advocates had the long end of a 28-to-27 vote.

Three St. Louis delegates voted against home rule, partisan Democrats who said they were against home rule because they did not want to give more power to Republicans. St. Louis, however, Jay Elmer Fox defeated Democratic candidate for the State Senate from the Twenty-fifth Senatorial District; Felix E. (Fish) McAdams and James R. Quigley, McAdams and Quigley also are against expansion for St. Louis, though Fox favors it.

Fight Over Obsolete Section.
It was a relatively obscure section of the report of the Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns, under consideration in Committee of the Whole, which precipitated the home-rule fight and drew a violent speech in opposition from Frank Farris of Rolla, Democrat.

Home-rule advocates believed that the section in question had little to do with home rule, but opponents of that principle chose to construe the section differently and force the fight, expected to come later, when the real home-rule section will be reached.

The provision under debate was that "except as otherwise directed by this Constitution, the election or appointment and the terms of office and duties of such other county, township and municipal officers, other than those of cities, as public convenience may require, shall be provided for by law, but no term of any such officer shall exceed four years."

Meaning of the Section.
Home rule adherents construed this section to mean that the Legislature may provide for the establishment of county, township or other officials as conditions may require, but may not create or abolish city offices, it being the intent of the committee to leave creation and abolition of such offices to the cities themselves, as provided for in other sections of the report. This would prevent the Legislature from creating additional city offices in St. Louis, for instance, or tinkering with the number and compensation of policemen in St. Joseph, or other cities, as it now does by special law.

L. M. Henson of Poplar Bluff led the anti-home rule in declaring that this provision would mean that the Legislature would be powerless to create a Sheriff or Collector, or other similar officials responsible to the State, in St. Louis, to enforce provisions of the revenue laws by which the State obtains its share of taxes collected in St. Louis. This construction is outside the possible meaning of the language of the section, the home rule advocates declared. The latter pointed out that the Legislature is specifically empowered to create county offices.

Henson, however, tried to strike out of the section the words "other than those of cities," which would leave the Legislature free to legislate salaries of officials up and down in various cities of the State, as at present. The provision was defeated, however, by one vote.

Lashly With Opponents.
Arthur V. Lashly of Webster Groves, Democratic delegate from the Twenty-fifth Senatorial District, voted for the Henson proposition.

The bulk of the Kansas City delegation voted with Lashly. R. E. Culver and G. L. Zwick of St. Joseph and all of the St. Louis delegation except Fox, McAdams and Quigley voted against the Henson amendment, delegates from the interior of the State dividing between the two ideas.

Farris, declaring that "home rule" is a myth, a pleasant phrase by which men have ridden to realization of political ambitions, only to take refuge then behind constitutional excuses for refusing to grant it, focused his speech against St. Louis.

"Some of the people in your city would like to be relieved of the authority of the General Assembly, don't want the General Assembly to have anything to say about the regulation of their affairs," he declared.

Argument of Farris.
"Some of them would like to relieve themselves of the payment of State taxes. Some of the people in your city would like to relieve themselves from the authority and power of the State in enforcement of the criminal laws of the State."

"You talk about allowing cities of the State to adopt their own charters. Why, there weren't 500 men in St. Louis who knew what your charter contained when it was adopted. They awoke afterward to find that it had increased the number of city employees a thousand and had increased salaries thousands of dollars. And how was it ratified? They got hold of the leaders of both political organizations and the word was sent down the line. That's how it was ratified. The cities now have all of the home rule consistent with the public good."

Farris admitted in reply to questions from Daniel G. Taylor of St. Louis, that people of the cities probably were no worse than those in the country and that the impulse to dodge taxes was not confined to cities, "but I am not talking about counties now. I am talking about cities," he said.

Farris challenged by Taylor. "Don't you know that St. Louis pays 42 per cent of the expenses of the State government?" Taylor queried, to which Farris responded that he did not know the proportion though realizing it was large.

What will happen to the real home rule sections is hard to foretell. Many of the leaders among delegates from interior Missouri are staunch believers in the fairness and desirability of allowing cities to handle their own municipal affairs, leaving the control of elections and like matters, clearly of statewide nature, in the State. But others "don't want to disturb the system the cities are accustomed to" or "don't want to give cities too many privileges," or "don't want to see cities discriminated against."

MEDALISTS WANT NO CHARITY

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Army and Navy Legion of Valor, composed exclusively of men who received the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross, last night made public a resolution cen- suring holders of high military honors who have accepted "public char- ity."

The resolution proclaims "a deep sense of humiliation that the glorious traditions of over half a century should have been sullied by men who, in battle, having won the greatest of all distinctions, should place themselves in the position of seeking public charity."

PAINTINGS VALUED AT $2,000,000 ON VIEW AT MUSEUM

Goudstikker Collection of Dutch and Flemish Works of Three and Four Centu- ries Ago Exhibited.

An important collection of 100 oil paintings by Dutch and Flemish masters of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries is on exhibition in the City Art Museum in Forest Park. The collection, that of Goudstikker of Amsterdam, Holland, was placed on view two days ago, though not finally arranged till yesterday, and will remain for a month.

The antiquity of the canvases and proportion of important works among them gives the museum a unique appearance. Two galleries are filled with the paintings, one of the main rooms and a smaller one adjoining.

Valued at $2,000,000. Aside from the art value of the group, the pictures are valued for sale at about $2,000,000. There are three Rembrandts valued together at $500,000, one of them alone, "He- racles and Democritus," being priced at $400,000. Among the other greatest masters represented are Van Dyck, Frans Hals, Rubens, Hobbema and Van Goyen.

The exhibition is costing the Art Museum nothing beyond the expense of hanging the canvases. Edward Mallinckrodt, vice president of the Museum Board and chemical manu- facturer, met the owners of the col- lection when in Amsterdam several months ago. He suggested exhibi- tion of the collection in America, starting in St. Louis. The Goudstik- kers, a family of art dealers, who had owned some of the canvases for several generations, decided to bring them here at their own expense. Jacques Goudstikker, son of the present head of the firm, who brought them over, said that the total expense of transporting the pic- tures will be $40,000 or $50,000. He expects to be reimbursed by the sale of some of them. From St. Louis he plans to take them to six other cities.

The group of the collection is Rem- brandt's "Heracles and Democritus," the sad philosopher and the happy one. It is about 42x54 inches in size. It represents the sage pon- dering over a terrestrial globe. Herac- litus is sad, and seems to think that life is hollow, while a conviction that life is good seems to make the coun- tenance of Democritus benign. Like many great pictures, a study of it brings out many points unnoticed in a brief inspection.

Heracles, who has a long beard, wears a yellow mantle with border of red; his head is half covered with a brown hood. With his left hand he is making a gesture of contradic- tion. Democritus is dressed in a gray mantle, bordered with violet fur. His half-raised right hand is making an explanatory gesture. He seeks to console his colleague.

History of Painting. The picture is one of Rem- brandt's mature works. There is a tradition that the model for Democ- ritus was the master's brother, Adriaen Rembrandt. The history of the picture tells that it was sold in- to England and found hanging on an obscure wall of a drawing room at Ascot in 1836, painted over till the figures were barely discernible and bereft of life. It was carefully restored.

The other Rembrandts in the ex- hibition are "The Apostle Paul," valued at $150,000, and "David Of- fering the Head of Goliath to King Saul," a small, colorful panel, val- ued at $40,000. "The Apostle Paul" was painted when Rembrandt was 20 years old, and shows, artists say, that his talent had not then reached its height. The figure is that of a bearded patriarch, poring over his books, as though in preparation of an epistle.

The era of Rembrandt, the seven- teenth century, was the great period of Dutch art. Flemish artists, too, achieved greatness, Rubens and Van Dyck especially. The two Van Dycks in the exhibition are "Portrait of Adriaen Moens," valued at $65,000, and "The Praying Apostle." The por- trait is that of a typical gentleman of the time, with white ruff and black jerkin.

Rubens is represented in the col- lection by two small portraits, "Head of a Young Woman" and "Portrait of a Gentleman."

Portraits Predominate. Portraits predominate in the ex- hibition, though these masters turned their brushes to depicting still and animate life in many forms. One of the greatest painters of land- scapes among them was Aelbert Cuyp, who excelled in painting cows as well as landscapes. Four of his works are on view, one of them a portrait of a woman, one "The Rider

With His Horse" and two landscapes. The most colorful is "Landscape With Figures and Cattle Near Rhe- nen." It shows a group of content- ed cows, whose herder sits on a rock playing a pipe for the amusement of a boy and girl; in the background is a canal running by a church.

There is a "Portrait of a Man" by Lucas Van Leyden, valued at $40,000. These various portraits mirror strong faces, faces that tell how Holland has survived the attacks of Others reflect the jovial and some-

the sea and of bigger lands. There are a number of street scenes which show the town life of the time and in which the peculiar Dutch archi- tecture, running to tall buildings with high-peaked roofs, is shown. A canvas by Emanuel de Witte, "In- terior of a Church," is a striking portrayal of ecclesiastical architec- ture.

Several of the pictures depict win- ter life, with skating on the canals. Hoiland has survived the attacks of Others reflect the jovial and somewhat rough spirit of the taverna. Adriaen Van Ostade, Jan Steen and David Teniers painted such can- vases. of Dutch and Flemish painters than any group ever shown here. Probably the collection is more valuable than any ever shown here. None of the pictures are un- der glass. Goudstikker brought with him about 25 old Dutch and Flem- ish paintings and about 40 modern Dutch works which could not be

Dutch followers, and his influence is shown in this collection. The exhibition comprises more canvases of Dutch and Flemish painters than any group ever shown here. Probably the collection is more valuable than any ever shown here. None of the pictures are un- der glass. Goudstikker brought with him about 25 old Dutch and Flem- ish paintings and about 40 modern Dutch works which could not be

DEFEATED CANDIDATE OBTAINS WRIT AGAINST ELECTION BOARD

Democrats Alleges Successful Negro Republican Opponent Is Not Qualified for Post of Justice.

Clark received 4417 votes and Nick 2110. Nick ran third among four candidates, two of whom were to be elected. Anton Schuler was the other successful Republican candidate.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Nov. 17.—Mayor Theodore Schierman of Liberty, Kan., who was kidnaped and flogged near here on the night of Oct. 14, has resigned. He made the announcement here last night and said he would not longer remain as a resident of Liberty. It is understood he will move with his family to Oklahoma.

Mayor Schierman said he tendered his resignation at a called meeting of the City Council Monday night, but the members refused to accept it, saying his services had been excellent. At the regular meeting last night Schierman did not appear with the Council and sent word he desired his resignation to become effective immediately. The Councilmen then agreed. Schierman, who has made his home in Liberty for 40 years, had been Mayor of the town about two years. Schierman denies the whipping caused his resignation.

This Mother---Uses Mentho-Laxene

"Last winter I resolved to provide in advance for the season's colds and coughs—and I did it. I spent less money and I had no worried vigils—watching my children through the dangerous periods of a bad cold. I want other mothers to know how I did it—my gratitude will then be theirs."

"I bought of my druggist a bottle of Essence Mentho-Laxene and mixed it into a pint of homemade sugar syrup. It's no trouble—three minutes, a little sugar and hot water, that's all. Just follow plain easy directions. The very first dose brings relief and I have not had a serious cold or cough in my family since I adopted this pure good medicine. It contains no chloroform or narcotics whatever. It's delicious and children don't fight it. I give it to my baby, my two older children and both my husband and self have found it supremely good in every way. It destroys the cold, stops the cough, tends to correct catarrhal trouble and helps prevent the dangerous, treacherous effects of a neglected cold, because it is healing, soothing, mildly laxative and tonic to the system."

"The manufacturers guarantee every bottle satisfactory or money back."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands who have tried Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and liver troubles.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never leave them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—dizziness—constipation—you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep regular. Try them. 15c and 30c.

CITY FILES SUIT TO CONDEMN MARKET STREET PROPERTY

Court Asked to Appoint Commissioners to Assess Damages in Widening Project.

A suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by the city to condemn property for widening of Market street from Sixth street to Vandeventer avenue. The court is asked to appoint three commissioners to assess benefits and damages to various property owners affected. More than 900 defendants are named.

An ordinance providing for widening became effective May 18 last. It was necessary for the city to file suit to conserve its rights, but it is not expected hearings will be held soon by the commissioners to be appointed, as the city is at present without money to go ahead with the work.

It is proposed to widen Market street to 100 feet. The district embraced in the proposed improvement also includes Walnut street from Third to Sixth streets.

SPENCER CONVINCED GARESCHE WILL GET FEDERAL JUDGESHIP

Senator Makes Statement During Short Visit at Washington—Goes to New York.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Senator Spencer, in the course of a few hours' visit to Washington today, said he was convinced that Circuit Judge Vital W. Garesche of St. Louis would get the appointment as Federal Judge of the Eastern Missouri District.

MAN KILLED BY FALLING TREE

John Krapp, 63 years old, a laborer, was crushed to death yesterday afternoon by the premature fall of a large apple tree which he was "crubbing out" on the farm of Joseph Fischer, 10 miles north of Belleville. The tree trunk crushed his chest. A verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury. Krapp had been digging the earth from the roots of the tree, preparatory to pulling it down. Mrs. Joseph Fischer, the only witness, said the tree fell suddenly, striking Krapp before he could dodge it.

Piles

Can't Be Cured from the Outside External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Not do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Wolff-Wilsons Drug Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

JURY SEEKS LARGE BOND FOR DRIVER AFTER AUTO DEATH

Recommends That Sum Be Fixed at $10,000 After Returning Verdict of Homicide Against Him.

DID NOT STOP CAR
AFTER ACCIDENT

Jury Lays Death of Henry
W. Frevert, 47, to John P.
M. Hays, 24— Companion Said He Refused to Halt Car.

In returning a verdict of homicide in an automobile death, a Coroner's jury today recommended a bond of $10,000 for the man named. The fixing of bond usually is left to the Circuit Attorney. The size of bond recommended is unusually large.

The verdict named John Perry Martin Hays, 24, of 1426 College avenue, who conducts a battery business at 2228 Washington avenue. Hays' automobile struck and fatally injured Henry W. Frevert, 47, of 2008 North Market street, on Nov. 11. Frevert died Wednesday.

The chief witness at the inquest was William J. Harris of 6043 Horton place, a contractor, who was a passenger in Hays' car. Frevert had just alighted from a Cass avenue street car at Twentieth street and Cass avenue.

Harris related that he had been gazing at a check which he held in his hand as Hays' machine was running beside the street car. He glanced up, he said, and saw a light about eight feet distant. He glanced down to the check again and felt a bump. The car was traveling about 20 miles an hour, he thought. Hays did not stop and Harris testified he felt the rear wheels pass over the man's body. He said he told Hays he should stop and see to the man, but Hays, without answer, kept going until he reached his place of business. Hays later was arrested. Harris testified also that Hays struck another automobile as he drove off from the spot where he hit Frevert, and that at no time did he see him apply brakes or sound a warning.

WOMAN DECLARES HUSBAND'S CHECKS DID NOT MEAN ANYTHING

Petitioner for Divorce Says Notes of Man Who Made $12,000 Yearly
Were Always Rejected.

Mrs. Helen Hofflander of 3124 Geyer avenue, in her suit for divorce from Gunnar Hofflander, a traveling salesman, alleges that when her husband wrote out checks to pay her bills it did not mean anything, because the checks invariably were returned from the bank on which they were drawn marked "insufficient funds."

Mrs. Hofflander, before her marriage, June 19, 1920, was Miss Helen Fishell. During their married life the Hofflanders resided at the Fishell home on Geyer avenue. The wife was there all the time and the husband lived there when not traveling. They separated June 10.

Today, when Hofflander went to the office of his wife's lawyer, A. M. Frumberg, to find out if there was any truth in the report that Mrs. Hofflander had sued him for divorce, Frumberg telephoned to the Sheriff's office and had Hofflander served with a copy of the petition.

Mrs. Hofflander says her husband's income is $12,000 a year. She asks for alimony.

29 PERSONS SNOWBOUND 5 DAYS

Auto Party of 12 Cars, Caught in Blizzard, Reached Ranch Home,
By the Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 17.—After having been snowbound for five days, with nothing but potatoes and beans to keep them from starving, 29 persons, including seven women and six children, were brought to Cheyenne today from a ranch home 18 miles north of the city. The party, mostly residents of Southern Wyoming and Colorado, left Wheatland for the South Saturday morning in 12 automobiles, but were caught by a blizzard.

They managed to reach the nearest house, where they were marooned until a rescue party using a 10-ton army tractor succeeded in plowing through the snow and reach them last night.

3 PERSONS BURNED FATALLY WHEN STILL EXPLODES

Nine Others Injured in Blast and Fire in "Moonshine" Plant in Mixed Foreign Quarter of Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Police today expressed the belief that gas accumulating in the making of whisky caused last night's explosion and fire in a "moonshine" distillery, resulting in the death of three persons and the injury of at least nine others. The explosion occurred in a mixed foreign quarter of the city, a melting pot for 14 different nationalities. Two buildings were wrecked.

In the ruins of one building, which was swept by flames, policemen and firemen found the wreckage of two stills. The original report of the firemen was that one of the stills had exploded.

Woman and Two Children Dead. The ground floor of the building, in which was the distillery, was occupied by a grocery store and the living quarters of the man who owned it—Joseph H. Verdoni and his family. Verdoni is in a hospital, suffering from severe burns. His wife, Paulina, 35 years old, and her 15-month-old baby, were burned to death. Firemen found the bodies with the child clasped in its mother's arms. Steve Bottino, 11, one of the six children of Joseph Bottino, who lived on the second floor, died in a hospital.

Immediately after the explosion flames burst from the building, trapping the occupants, whose screams were heard for blocks. Fumes from the stills fed the flames. The floor of the grocery fell in with the explosion, permitting the fire to jump immediately to the second floor.

Fireman reached the scene in a few minutes, but hesitated to throw long streams of water into the building, which burned like a furnace, for fear of further endangering the trapped occupants.

Fire Chief Rescues Children. Donning a gas mask and ordering none but his chauffeur, Charles Bratt, to follow, Frank Eraband, battalion Fire Chief, plunged through the flames with Bratt at his heels.

Firemen, fearful for their Chief when he failed to reappear in a few minutes, were on the point of attempting to follow him into the building when suddenly Braband burst outside, a child under each arm. He turned back and soon brought out another injured child. Bratt rescued several others.

Besides Verdoni the injured are: Constance Verdoni, 6; Joseph Bottino, 65; his wife, Justina, 42, and their children, Louis, 5; Josephine, 12; John, 10; Anthony, 9, and Mary, 7.

Despite his burns, Verdoni was placed under arrest at the hospital today. Police said they believe the grocery he conducted was only a blind for the illegal distillery in the basement. One of the stills was a huge affair which reached the ceiling.

Police are keeping a close watch over Verdoni in the hospital in the belief that some members of the moonshine ring to which it is believed he belongs, might visit him.

Man Reported Dead Heard From. Belleville relatives of Louis Pfingsten, who was reported killed by a train at Seligman, Ariz., yesterday received a card dated Oct. 12, stating that he had arrived safe at Los Angeles, Cal. The card is dated on the same day he was reported killed. They are now trying to ascertain how the report of his death originated.

MAN HIT BY AUTO GETS $3500

Judgment Returned in East St. Louis Federal Court Against Farmer. A jury in the Federal Court at East St. Louis yesterday returned a verdict in favor of Robert S. Radford, a carpenter of St. Louis, for $3500, in his suit against Henry Schutte, a farmer of Randolph County, Ill., for damages for injuries received Nov. 13, 1919, when, he alleged, he was knocked down and run over by an auto driven by Schutte. Testimony was that the accident happened on the Cahokia road south of East St. Louis, while Radford was on his way home from work. He was employed at the plant of the Monsanto Chemical Co.

AMBULANCE CHASING OLD EVIL, SPEAKER SAYS

It Dates Back to Days When Bicycles Followed Horses, Claim Agents Are Told.

Ambulance chasers are "not a new evil, but an old one—a coyote in a skunk's clothing," said C. M. Sadler, general solicitor of the Kansas City Railway Co., in discussing the habits of the species and means of controlling it, at the convention of the Mid-West Claim Agents' Association at Hotel Jefferson today.

Sadler said ambulance chasing by lawyers, seeking damage suit business, was a modernized form of harratry, a term so old that its origin was found in a Sanscrit word meaning war.

"In the day of horse-drawn vehicles certain persons, erroneously called men," he said, "kept bicycles ready to follow the ambulance when it answered a call, hence the name ambulance chaser. Since the invention of the motor vehicle, literal ambulance chasing has become a lost clean his information from other sources, but in the language of the poet.

"You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will, But the scent of the roses will hang 'round it still."

Gives Reasons for Practice.

"Doubtless men became ambulance chasers for the same reason they become thieves and robbers. Dire necessity, lack of legitimate business, the easiest way to make money, the most returns for the least effort, are doubtless the main causes. The ambulance chaser 'tolls not, neither does he spin,' but he does wear a white collar and ride in a high priced automobile. His stock in trade is a glib tongue coupled with a prosperous appearance. He preys upon ignorance and forms a partnership with crime. He is practically unknown in the country or small town, but flourishes and grows fat in the muck and mire of the great city, hence he is more damaging to the street railway company than the steam railroad or the interurban electric.

"We find a few ambulance chasers who ply their trade in a half decent way—they boldly go out and solicit business without misrepresentation, but they are few and their effect is not particularly harmful. They are engaged in the business merely because they have to do that or starve; they do not believe in it or like it, and quit as soon as they can make an honest living. They are usually honest, and follow ambulance chasing or soliciting for the same reason that honest men sometimes steal."

Says Chasers Work in Pairs.

Sadler said that ambulance chasers sometimes work in pairs. The first one represents himself as an agent of the company, talks insolently and makes an outrageously small offer, and, on its rejection, says angrily that it is the last offer "his" company will make. Right behind him comes chaser No. 2, who consoles the victim, tells him "what the way they always do," sets the damages obtainable at two or three times what it would be reasonable to expect, and gets a contract for a lawsuit. Sometimes the claimant is dishonest, added Sadler, and then a partnership is formed for collecting for injuries not received, or as results of the accident, for old illnesses ranging from dandruff to blackleg.

The worst effect of such activity, from Sadler's viewpoint, is this: "The false representations to the effect that the company and its agents will not deal fairly with an injured person; that it buys witnesses, courts and juries, and engages in many other unlawful things in order to defeat an honest claim, results in a general prejudice against such companies, which is also reflected in verdicts on the question of liability."

The class thrives on the ignorance of claimants, he said, and through the aid of unscrupulous physicians who receive money for "tips" and the willingness of reputable lawyers to take cases solicited thus, and even to employ a corps of runners.

Plan to Reduce Practice.

Sadler does not believe that "ambulance chasers" ever can be exterminated. But he believes they can be reduced to a harmless minimum if "all companies adopt and carry out a plan whereby all clear liability cases are adjusted on a fair basis, or at least a fair offer made within a reasonable time after the accident occurs."

"Arouse the medical profession," he concluded, "get it to go after the crooked doctor who sells his influence to the ambulance chaser and revoke his license; go after the ambulance chasing lawyer and disbar him; induce the respectable lawyer peaceably, or forcibly if necessary, to quit taking cases without knowing they have not been solicited; prosecute, whenever possible, any person perpetrating a fraud or perjury in connection with a personal injury, and refuse to employ a lawyer who accepts solicited cases."

HOHENSCHILD SUED FOR AN ACCOUNTING BY HIS PARTNERS

Former Head of Defunct Bank Charged With Appropriating Stocks and Profits to Own Use.

H. H. Hohenschild, former president of the defunct Night and Day Bank, is charged with appropriating to his own use certain stocks, credits and profits obtained by him as an officer and director in the firm of architects of Hohenschild-Corribia-Henderson Co., in a suit for accounting filed by the company today.

The petition alleges that Hohenschild failed to turn over to the company certain stocks, credits and profits obtained by him as an officer and director of the company; that he appropriated them to his own use and made no accounting of them to the company. Lawyers representing the company said they did not know the amount involved.

Hohenschild, as is known, with other directors of the Night and Day Bank, is under indictment charged with assenting to acceptance of deposits in an insolvent bank.

BLAST FATAL TO 77 MEN LAID TO DYNAMITE 'SHOT' OR OPEN LAMP

Result of Investigation Into Pennsylvania Mine Disaster Made Public.

By the Associated Press. SPANGLER, Pa., Nov. 17.—A dynamite "shot" or an open lamp caused the explosion in the Rellie mine here on Nov. 6, when 77 miners met death, Seward Button, chief inspector of the State Bureau of Mines, said in his report on his investigation, made public yesterday.

After a thorough inspection of the underground channels, Chief Button said, the State investigators believed the explosion occurred when a miner set off a charge of dynamite or when one of the diggers walked through a pocket of gas with an open lamp.

REFUGEES NEAR STARVATION
Sufferers on Islands of Aegean Said to Be Living on Locust Pods.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Starving refugees on islands of the Aegean Sea are in need of more than 100 barrels of flour daily to sustain life.

and should have 100,000 blankets and immense quantities of shoes and material for clothing, the Red Cross was advised today by D. O. Hubbard, a Y. M. C. A. representative at Athens, who has just completed a tour of the islands.

Hubbard reported that on one island he found refugees living on locust pods, while at another point they were boiling grass which goats had refused to eat. On certain islands the number of refugees exceeded the normal population.

BOGY SEEKS RECOUNT IN EACH ELEVENTH DISTRICT PRECINCT

Defeated by Hawes by 7769 Unofficial Majority—Charges Fraud and Misconduct

Bernard P. Bogy, defeated Republican candidate in the race for Congress in the Eleventh (St. Louis) District, today filed a petition with the Board of Election Commissioners asking for a recount of all ballots cast on Nov. 7 in each of the 156 precincts in the district.

He charges fraud, misconduct of election officials and irregularities generally, and adds specific charges relative to several precincts.

Bogy was defeated by Congressman Harry B. Hawes, Democrat, by a majority of 7769 votes, under the unofficial count, which gave Hawes a total of 24,624 votes to 16,855 for Bogy. Bogy contested the election of Hawes two years ago, when the latter's majority was 2134, although Harding carried the district by 2022 on the vote for the presidency. A recount at that time cut Hawes' plurality 67 votes. Bogy carried the contest to Congress, where the Elections Committee of the House, composed of six Republicans and three Democrats, voted unanimously to seat Hawes.

The Election Board probably will pass upon Bogy's petition at a meeting tomorrow. The board has ordered a recount of ballots cast for Justices of the Peace, Constables and members of the State Legislature, in 148 precincts. In each case in which a recount has been ordered the majority of the winning candidate has been less than 100 votes.

FORMER GARBAGE AND LAUNDRY WAGON HORSE CUP WINNER

"Submersible" Comes Up From Lowly Station to Take Honors at New York Horse Show

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—From the shafts of a garbage wagon at Fort Riley, Kan., a chestnut gelding dubbed Submersible by a buck private who sometimes drove him to a post laundry wagon, leaped into fame at the national horse show yesterday as a blue-ribbon winner, capturing the coveted F. Ambrose Clark cup championship for chargers.

The event was a competitive test for army horses ridden by officers in full equipment. Maj. John A. Barry had the mount on Submersible. The former laundry horse, now 7 years old, might still have been going the dull routine rounds at the fort but for the eye of a lover of horse flesh who saw possibilities in the animal. Submersible was relieved of his arduous tasks, the unkempt tail and the long mane got better attention and yesterday he thrilled spectators with his proud transformation. Other honors have fallen to Submersible at the show, including the lightweight championship for chargers and the challenge cup for army horses.

PRESS WELCOMES BRITAIN'S RETURN TO PARTY RULE

Even Liberal Papers Find Satisfaction in Election Result; Lloyd George "Quite Satisfied."

CONSERVATIVES HAVE MAJORITY ABOVE 80

Defeat Upsets Churchill; Labor Now Second Largest Party in Commons; Communist Wins.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Gratification expressed by most of the morning newspapers at the result of yesterday's parliamentary election. The retention of the Conservative majority, of course, pleases the Conservative press, but some of the Liberal newspapers also find ground for satisfaction or at least compensation. These Liberal papers recognize that the outcome means a return to party government and the disappearance of all they had most disliked in the survival of the coalition long after they had regarded its dissolution as due.

"We are rid," says the Westminster Gazette, "of the compromises and subtleties which have made the government unpalatable." The Daily News declares the election has blown a breath of clean air into our discredited parliamentary institutions, and rejoices at the establishment of "a strong, effective and able opposition."

Anticipates Another Vote Soon.

The Daily Herald, exulting over Labor's successes, anticipates another election within 18 months, and says: "If meantime we play our cards boldly and skillfully, we ought to have a Labor Government without delay."

The Times regards the result with deep satisfaction and says it demolishes the last arguments for maintenance of the coalition. It says the balance has been evened between the Liberals and the Laborites, but believes the country has nothing to fear and much to gain from ventilation of the Labor Party's views in Parliament.

Several of the newspapers derive satisfaction from the fact that the Conservative majority is not overwhelmingly large, thus enabling the opposition to exercise a wholehearted check upon the predominant party.

Conservative Majority.

The size of the Conservative majority is seriously disputed by the papers, their figures ranging from 87 to 117, and until all the returns are complete, this divergence will continue.

The House of Commons will meet Monday afternoon to elect the speaker, and it is considered certain that the late Speaker, the Right Honorable John Henry Whitaker, will be re-elected. Tuesday and Wednesday will be occupied by the new members and the formal opening of Parliament. The King will take place Thursday.

Victory for Younger.

The result of the election means the long fight between Lloyd George and Sir George Younger has ended with victory for the younger man. Sir George, who was the champion of the Unionist party, and his adherents staked their political fortunes at the famous Carlton Club meeting, which smashed the coalition and sent Sir George into the wilderness on the understanding that he would return to the straight party fold. The result of the election means a Parliament with little change, except that Bonar Law resigns as Prime Minister, and that the former Premier's unpopularity has been reduced by the elections to 30, presumably will henceforth be in opposition instead of working in co-operation with the Conservatives.

The downfall of Lloyd Georgeism is the outstanding feature of the election. The Coalition Liberals, at the dissolution, numbered 129; they were represented in the new Parliament by only 44. The Aquilithian Liberals have improved their position, rising from 34 in the old Parliament to 51 in the new. Labor has risen from 76 to 104.

A curious situation obtains in the Labour Division of Derbyshire, where the Labor candidate, Frank Webb, at first declared elected by a majority of 14 votes. A recount was demanded, this majority was reduced to two. There now have been six counts in all and all have been challenged. There will be another today, which perhaps will be the last.

Communist is Elected.

For the first time in the history of the British Parliament a candidate standing as an avowed Communist was elected, when J. W.

NAMED ON JURISTS' BODY

John Bassett Moore to Represent America at International Conference.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The State Department has announced the appointment of John Bassett Moore as the American representative on the International Commission of Jurists to consider changes in the rules of international law.

Moore is now at The Hague, where the commission is scheduled to hold its first meeting Dec. 10.

Newbold was returned for the Mother Hill Division of Lanarkshire.

Another isolated member is Sir Seymour, prohibitionist, who, with the Laborites, E. J. Morel, defeated Winston Churchill and three other candidates in Dundee, a two-seat constituency.

Those who expected Churchill's defeat little expected Seymour's victory. He has been trying to enter Parliament for Dundee since 1905. His candidacy hitherto has been treated largely as a joke. He is an ardent prohibitionist and was one of those who brought Carrie Nation, the Kansas anti-alcohol fanatic, to Great Britain years ago. Women's votes are thought to have been a large factor in his election, as they outnumbered the men in this district.

Churchill seems to have been much upset by the result, although he spoke cheerfully when it became known. Weak from an operation and the efforts of the last few days of the contest, he presented a picture to onlookers, a moving figure, with his defeat was announced, tears standing in his eyes. He had represented his division for 14 years.

Large Vote for Women.

Notwithstanding the rejection of all but two of the 33 women candidates, it is noteworthy that they polled a very large number of votes and everywhere proved formidable opponents. The largest vote for a woman candidate was cast in Northampton, where the Conservative leader, Miss Margarette Bondfield, polled more than 14,000 votes. Lady Cooper, running on the Conservative ticket, also received more than 14,000 and almost defeated her Liberal opponent in Walsall.

Of the two re-elected women members, Viscountess Astor polled in excess of 13,000 votes and Mrs. Margarette Wintingham about 11,000, while the other candidates received three constituencies received more than 9,000 each and many of the others from 6,000 to 7,000.

The future of the Labor party in Parliament is a matter of special interest. Being the second largest party in the House, it should, according to parliamentary tradition, become the official opposition, and it is expected the party will claim for its chairman the post of official opposition. The second largest party, called "his majesty's opposition." This, however, may be disputed, because Lloyd George, as the outgoing Premier, has some claim to the position, extending over a vote.

Noteworthy Casualties.

Among the noteworthy casualties were the defeat of Arthur Henderson, Labor Leader, and the overthrow of five members of the new administration, for whom safe seats would seem have to be found.

The defeat of Churchill, Sir Hamar Greenwood, former Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Frederick G. Kelly, former Postmaster-General, were severe blows to Lloyd George, who, however, had the satisfaction of seeing his son returned by a large majority, while both his secretaries, Sir Edward M. G. G. and G. H. Shakespeare, were elected.

Aquith had a somewhat narrow escape from defeat, and his chief henchmen, Sir Donald MacLean and Walter Runciman, were returned.

Maj. Lloyd George, the former Premier's son, had an enormous majority in Pembroke, his poll being 21,568 to 9703 for the Laborite Jenkins. But the George Liberals continued to fare badly, and Lloyd George was elected through Carnarvon, the Georgeite candidate, Maj. C. E. Breese, was defeated in the county of Carnarvon by the Laborite R. T. Jones by more than 1,000.

Labor suffered a bad defeat in the loss of Henderson, but, on the other hand, J. Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, Sidney Webb, chairman of the Independent Labor party, and other Labor stalwarts have been returned.

Pacifists are Elected.

A feature was the change in the attitude of the coalition towards men of pacifist opinion. In the election of 1918, among the successful candidates were Ramsay MacDonald, Snowden, Arthur Ponsonby, Charles T. Trevelyan, Noel Buxton and George Lansbury, former editor of the Daily Herald.

Lloyd George said last night that he was "quite satisfied" with the result, but declined to be interviewed. Aquith declined to express any opinion on the result.

The Labor party issued a manifesto stating that it found "abundant reasons for satisfaction."

Labor's success is said to be largely attributable to great measure responsibility for the campaign organization for the party for the past 30 years. Webb has been, with George, the hard Shaw, the leading representative of the Fabian Society, and closely co-operated with the Independent Labor party.

Is the Friendly "Warren" Becoming Just "Mr. President" Under Pressure of His Office?

Two Years in White House Bring Aloofness and Disillusionment

Reprinted by Special Permission From Collier's "The National Weekly."

By BOYDEN SPARKS.

SOME of these cold autumn nights when the master of the White House, in pajamas and bathrobe, is relaxed in a low, deep-backed, faded green armchair with a copy of day-before-yesterday's Marion Daily Star across his lap and a single lamp shining over his shoulder, I imagine Laddie Boy sneaking into what was once Abraham Lincoln's bedroom and is surprised and hurt, as he nuzzles for attention, to be greeted: "Why, hello there, Hub."

Maybe the name he hears is Jumbo or Senator. Each name represents a dog of the Harding past, one the builders of an entailed estate of love of which this Alfrede is the legal inheritor. Although Laddie Boy may not understand this, he knows human psychology, as does any well-balanced dog, through an unending more subtle than can be imparted by the greatest universities, and I have no doubt that he curls up on the thickly carpeted floor then and goes to sleep to dream in company with his boss of days that are gone.

But while the young dog whines and twitches and snarls softly in a fanciful chase after stags and bears that were killed by his ancestors, Warren Harding is smiling, with eyes closed, as his brain reproduces a lullaby from the remembered "rumble" of the press of his own newspaper, or perhaps he is hearing the blare of his own French horn in the Marion Silver Band playing "Doc Mungler's Quickstep."

The man in the White House is a sterner individual than the editor of the Marion Star. If there be discontent reflected in his face at times, it is the discontent of a motorist who discovers that his car, the finest car made, has some slack in the steering apparatus and a knock in the engine. He, yes, a knock. It is the acid of criticism, quite as much as the weight of responsibility and a recalcitrant Republican Congress that has etched the deeper lines that now show in the Harding countenance.

But analysis shows that there is another element in his dissatisfaction with this place to which he has been transported by the magic carpet of politics. It is a fixed idea harbored by many who acquire great power, a feeling that too many of those who come to call bring axes to grind. Who can say the feeling is not justified?

This sentiment is most clearly revealed by the President's genuine bewilderment when he greets at the White House some person he knows is above suspicion of design or guile. Nearly every day about 1 o'clock, when it grows near time for him to go to luncheon, he receives a line of callers, and he is obliged to shake hands with him in much the same spirit that people have kissed the Blarney stone—so that they can say they have done it.

For a time, until the Secret Service men stopped the practice, eight-to-ten char-a-bancs were dumping their tourist-customers into this line. Now it is customary for such visitors to present a letter of introduction from their Congressmen.

With keen-eyed Ferguson and one or two other Secret Service men watching, these visitors are herded in single file past the President in his green, circular-walled office. One day a few months ago Mr. Harding retained a grip on the hand of one he greeted in this line.

"Hello, Harry," he said, and pulled from the column Harry Task, who is steward of the Marion Club. "You stay right here. I want to talk to you."

Task remained until the last of the line had gone.

Then Task, who played a really important part in the campaign, directing the stream of pilgrims of thousands of influential pilgrims who came to the front porch, was taken to the White House for luncheon and pumped by a host and hostesses who were thirsty for news of everyone in Marion, and it is better than an even-money bet that he returned to his job with a couple of recipes extracted from the White House chef by Mrs. Harding herself.

As this is being written, word has been brought by Dr. Sawyer from Mr. Harding's sick room to an anxious nation that the dangerous phase of her illness is past and that no operation is contemplated, at least until she has completely recovered her strength. So it seems a good time to reveal what is known to most of Marion: Mrs. Harding is the real patient of Brigadier General Sawyer. Had she been treated during this illness by a physician less informed as to her medical history, she would have had no chance for recovery. I think it was her condition, primarily, that caused the President to lure Dr. Sawyer away from his sanitarium at White Oaks Farm. Mr. Harding's health never gives this physician much concern, except when he fails to get a necessary amount of exercise and when the strain of his job is betrayed by Exercise, incidentally, is one of the most troublesome problems of the chief executive of this republic. If Roosevelt boxed, those who were prejudiced against boxing, on the ground that it was brutal, would have complained. When Taft rode horseback, members of Bands of Mercy, or some such order, circulated petitions beseeching him to have pity for a poor dumb brute with which he did not design to carry such a load. When Wilson golfed they rallied, and now when Harding golfs they chide him. Probably they complain, these letter writers, when he rides a horse in the keen air of early mornings. The theory of those who blurt about this most necessary recreation seems to be that as a President is elected for four years he ought to work every minute of his twenty-four-hour day.

"I will welcome the day when I can come back to stay with you permanently," President Harding told his neighbors and kinsfolk when he was home in July for the town's centennial celebration. Does he mean that? "W. G." really didn't of his job? Having witnessed some of the gent powers that belong to the office, Marion people doubt it. They have decided it was just Warren's way of securing them his head was not swollen; that he had been overtime and kind of weary of standing on a pedestal, and of having to chew his tobacco as furtively as when he was in school over in Caledonia, swallowing the juice behind the screen formed by his geography.

Marion, Ohio, July Fourth.

The concrete grandstand at the fairgrounds race track held but a fraction of the crowd that had swarmed into Marion for the Fourth of July doings. At the upper end of the track, a grandstand had been erected across the track and thousands of Ohio folks were massed behind it. In the rear of the stand were other thousands, and still others were lined along the track fence. Behind the screen formed by his geography.

There is one thing about living in the White House that certainly disturbs the President. He has told Marion friends that he never would become accustomed to being served first at his table. Man's oldest son is Warren Harding, a West Pointer and now a first lieutenant in the army, stationed in Washington. As a younger son he was as much at home in the Harding house as in his father's.

F. E. Scooby, once Sheriff of Marion County and in more recent years, because of his health, a resident of San Antonio, is director of the White House. As a job to that his chief function in Washington is to drive gloom from the executive mansion.

Old Charles Patton was another. One of Sherman's bummers on the march to the sea, he owns a couple of farms in Ohio, but appears not to have a dime. With his chin beard and lanky figure he might, if properly costumed, be taken for Uncle Sam himself. When nostalgia doesn't lure him back to Ohio, he may be found with a rake or a broom keeping the White House lawns tidy. Frank Blacksten, the Harding chauffeur for 12 years before they came to the White House, has a job to Washington, and gets around to the White House often enough to be known favorably to Laddie Boy.

Harding Craves Solitude.

When the day's mail is read and answered, the appointment schedule completed, Cabinet meetings (Tuesdays and Fridays, when he also receives the newspaper correspondents) disposed of, Mr. Harding sometimes slips out of the White House at dusk and strides into the sidewalk streams of homeward-bound clerks. A secret service man, or maybe half a dozen secret service men, are near, but the former editor of the Marion Star gets a touch of the solitude he craves. If he is recognized, so much the better. It gives a Haroun-al-Raschid coloring to his adventure. Perhaps it is raining. He likes it.

Then, after an hour of this, back to the White House to drink for dinner. Don't think he may, because he is master there, slip into his high-backed chair in the dining room, buckle his collar and tie and with his shirt and tucked trousers, the President decrees White House tradition must dine in full evening dress. There are no shacks of convention should be enough to lift Jimmy Cox out of the slough of despond.

But there remains something hanging over the President. He may enjoy it, but I doubt this. He must, at least he does, read what the newspapers are saying about him. He postpones this until he is ready for bed. White House clerks throughout the day have clipped articles, calculated to interest him, from newspapers sent from all over the country, all the New York newspapers, all the Washington newspapers.

The Jenny Mule Story.

That horse of the President's came from the stable of Harvey Firestone, the tire manufacturer. The Hardings spent a day at his camp at Big Pond, Md., not long after they entered the White House. Henry Ford and Thomas Edison were there, too. Firestone persuaded Mr. Harding to ride one of his horses. It was the first time he had ridden for 30 years. He liked it. Dr. Sawyer applauded, and not long afterward the big chestnut was shipped into Washington. He is now as much a part of the administration as was Mr. Taft's steed.

On that camping trip the President discovered that he and Thomas Edison were kindred spirits. Slouching deep in canvas camp chairs, with long cigars clamped in their teeth, they swapped ideas by the hour. They are not unlike in appearance. Both have large heads and generous features and both gaze at the world beneath bushy black brows.

The Fourth of July program at Marion included a speech by the Controller of the Currency, Dick Crisinger, who until he was appointed to that office was Marion's leading Democratic lawyer, and sometimes a candidate, beneath the rooster emblem, for Congress. What ever he said in his speech, it is an even-money bet that the Controller of the Currency was having a hard time remembering what he wanted to say.

When "L. J." Beard Wagged.

Would the people of Marion be likely, after that close-up of his power, to believe that Warren was tired of his job? To use the amplifier in its altered form for a moment more: "Let the sun glitter on that diamond ornament on Florence Harding's neck. Wouldn't old Amos Kling feel that he was alive and remembered how he opposed his daughter's marriage? Used to say W. G. never'd amount to a tinker's dam. Look-out George Christian's silk hat. He'd never have worn that when he was a cub on the star nor when he was tied up with that stone quarry. There's Doc Sawyer, just behind Pershing. Some general. Don't the Doc know he mustn't acknowledge anyone when he's with an officer?"

to compare the present situation of Warren Harding with that of the long-legged boy who sat across the aisle from him in the school in Caledonia.

"He was full of the old Nick as a boy, four or five years younger than me," said Crisinger one time. "We had two gangs in Caledonia. I belonged to the Chain Gang and Harding was one of the Stunners. They were the more reckless and hardy spirits among the younger boys. The Hardings lived a short ways out of Caledonia on a farm, and Doc was called him that because his dad was the village doctor—used to ride to school on a jenny mule. His legs would drag on the ground."

"When I came back to Marion from Cincinnati law school Harding was going to marry the daughter of old Amos Kling. He was about the richest man in town and didn't think much of his daughter's choice. They went right ahead, built their house and were married in the parlor. It was raining, and he was addressing the crowd, had announced that all of the members of the old Marion Silver Band were to assemble in front of the stand to play 'number 47' from the old black book."

He played a French horn in that band. E. K. Clark, now a traveling salesman of Marion, played the tuba; Joe Mathews of the Marion Lumber Co., of which President Harding has always been a director, played the snare drum. There were others of the old band present, and if such a thing had been within the bounds of becoming, they would have got together and played a tune. Falling that, there was a vast amount of laughing reminiscences whenever two of them met, and usually Warren was the one to say, "Remember the old band?"

Canadian Move to Bar Asiatics.

He proposed the Dominion Government be asked not to engage in any treaty that would restrict the authority of the provincial Legislature.

Boxer Indemnity Applied to Bank.

By the Associated Press.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 17.—The Chamber of Deputies today ratified an agreement applying the balance of 350,000,000 francs of the Boxer indemnity to refloating the Industrial Bank of China, which suspended its payments in June, 1921. The vote was 444 to 15.

pers, and representative papers in every large city and some smaller ones. These clippings are pasted on sheets of yellow paper and then assorted according to subject. It's a tough diet to go to sleep on, and there is no disputing the fact that Mr. Harding does not enjoy criticism, but, then, who does?

Will Harding Return to Marion?

One stage comedian who played in Washington this year discovered that this resentment of criticism is a positive dislike. The man, well known to Broadway theatergoers and movie fans over the country, was so pleased with the reception given to his unfair parody of Secretary Hughes' conduct of the disarmament conference. He took tickets to the White House executive offices and left them on a easel in the room where the President would attend that night's performance. That night the White House automobile swung around the corner and stopped before the rival theater. It was never necessary to do anything like that in Marion.

Strong as his attachment for Marion is, there are not many people who really believe the Hardings ever will return there to live. They have lived in Washington for almost eight years. By the time they are ready to move from the White House, whether that is '25 or '28, "W. G." probably will have a tour of the world mapped out for them, and when that is completed it is almost a safe bet they will select for themselves a home within hailing distance of the District of Columbia.

Politics is meat and drink to both of them, and after a taste of international politics, the Ohio brand is going to have a weak flavor. True enough, there is a golf course in Marion now. Its greens were sodded after the Hardings went to the White House, and by the time they are ready to leave undoubtedly these will be as excellent as greens anywhere.

But human nature is a perverse thing. Once definitely out of the White House, the former occupants would doubtless prefer occupying the position of a high-priced expert as well as the corporations can. Collectively they could afford to do for all that which no one small municipality can afford to do for itself.

"The commission should occupy the position of guarding every interest of the public in the matter of utility rates and service. Questions of doubt should be solved by it in the interest of the public rather than in the interest of the utility. I am afraid that in some instances the commission has been so zealous in making sure the utilities got all that was coming to them that it forgot its large obligation to the public. Anyway, it will do no harm to know in a public inquiry just what the commission has done, and such an inquiry may be productive of which would be, of course, a very good."

ROMANIAN CONSOLIDATION PLAN COMPLICATES DEBT PROBLEM

Program for Bonds to Run Until 1988
Conflicts With Authority of U. S. Funding Commission.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Complications in the negotiations for the funding of the $4,000,000 Rumanian war debt to this country are looked for at the Treasury as a result of the program of the Rumanian Government for the consolidation of its external debt.

The Rumanian Government has announced in London a consolidated loan of approximately $175,000,000 consisting of bonds bearing interest at 4 per cent annually and redeemable not later than April 1938, which are to be issued to holders of Rumanian treasury bills, and it is understood a similar consolidation of outstanding bills is planned for this year. Payment of the interest and principal of the consolidated bonds, it is reported, is to be made with priority over any other payments by Rumania.

War-time advances to Rumania by this country, however, were made on the condition that the United States should stand on equal terms with the other creditors of Rumania in the manner of payment. Moreover, on the question of the authority of the American commission is limited by law to funding foreign debts into obligations of maturities of not more than 25 years and with interest at not less than 4 1/2 per cent.

Treasury officials have expressed the view that the Rumanian consolidation scheme and the scheme of this country for equal treatment in the manner of payment would have to be reconciled with the authority of the American commission is limited by law to funding foreign debts into obligations of maturities of not more than 25 years and with interest at not less than 4 1/2 per cent.

Shipping Board Claim Settled.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Chairman Lasker announced yesterday settlement of the claim of the Long Beach Shipbuilding Co. of California against the Shipping Board for approximately $400,000 for canceled contracts. This amount was accepted by the claimant, Lasker said. Settlement was also made with the Lokenbach S. S. Co. of a claim whereby the company will pay the board "several millions dollars," Lasker said.

M'CAWLEY SEEKS TO CURB POWER OF SERVICE BOARD

Senator-Elect From Twenty-Eighth District Proposes Inquiry Into Decisions of Commission on Public Utilities.

SEEKS INFORMATION TO GUIDE LAWMAKERS

Would Prevent Body From Setting Aside Legal Contracts by Power Corporations With Municipalities.

An investigation of the decision of the Missouri Public Service Commission, to be made by the State Senate soon after it convenes Jan. 3, was proposed today by Alfred L. McCawley, an attorney of Carthage and Senator-elect from the Twenty-eighth District. McCawley, who is preparing a resolution for a committee of investigation and would introduce it as soon as the Senate was organized for business.

His purpose, McCawley said, was to collect information for the Senate to guide them in consideration of a bill he would introduce to curb the power of the commission.

"It is my opinion," said McCawley, "that the Public Service Commission should be an investigating body and not a court, though I would not take from it the power to regulate the commission a little more responsible to the people than under the present plan. I would have its members elected by districts in the State, rather than appointed at large by the Governor."

Disatisfaction With Decisions.

"It seems to me that if elected, the members of the commission would feel closer to the people. I know there is very general dissatisfaction with the decisions of the commission, but I would not permit us to do away with the chance for good a properly organized commission could do."

"It is my idea to include in the bill which I introduce a provision which would prevent the commission from setting aside legal contracts which utilities have made with municipalities."

"Public utilities have obtained from the commission orders abrogating contracts to supply service at stipulated rates on the ground that at such rates they could not make a fair earning; that is, that the contracts had become burdensome."

"If a private utility makes a contract with another private utility, it is compelled to carry it out even if it is burdensome, and what are contracts between municipalities and public utility corporations except contracts between citizens and the stockholders of the corporations? In most instances the contracts were made to obtain valuable franchise rights. The commission should not have power to set aside such contracts."

"It is only right that the Senate should have complete information before voting to amend the Public Service Commission law, and to provide that information I shall endeavor to have a committee of Senators appointed to inquire into the decisions of the commission from the time it was formed in 1913."

"We should know to what extent rates of public utility companies have increased in that period, and should know whether the commission has benefited or injured the public at large. I do not believe it will be difficult to ascertain such facts."

"I do not suggest that there have been decisions by the commission which were not in accordance with the evidence before it, but I can readily understand that the commission may have been influenced too much by the highly paid experts which the big companies have produced before it when the small municipalities were unable to employ such experts to present their sides of the cases."

"It occurs to me that it would be proper to give municipalities legal authority to expend municipal funds in the formation and operation of a mutual association, which could employ the high-priced experts as well as the corporations can. Collectively they could afford to do for all that which no one small municipality can afford to do for itself."

"The commission should occupy the position of guarding every interest of the public in the matter of utility rates and service. Questions of doubt should be solved by it in the interest of the public rather than in the interest of the utility. I am afraid that in some instances the commission has been so zealous in making sure the utilities got all that was coming to them that it forgot its large obligation to the public. Anyway, it will do no harm to know in a public inquiry just what the commission has done, and such an inquiry may be productive of which would be, of course, a very good."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Gas Consumer's Story.

YOUR editorials and other articles on the 12 gas rate wanted by the Laclede Gas Light Co. are appreciated by at least one gas consumer.

After receiving my gas bill for the period Oct. 7-Nov. 7, I felt as the man appears in your cartoon of today's date—grieved. It occupied this flat since Nov. 11, 1921, and gas bills for the past year are:

Nov. 21 to Dec. 9	$2.07	13
Dec. 9 to Jan. 7	1.91	34
Jan. 7 to Feb. 4	4.14	36
Feb. 4 to Mar. 7	3.80	33
Mar. 7 to April 7	4.26	37
April 7 to May 8	1.73	35
May 8 to June 7	2.39	36
June 7 to July 2	2.53	32
July 2 to Aug. 8	1.96	37
Aug. 8 to Sept. 7	4.26	37
Sept. 7 to Oct. 7	3.11	27
Oct. 7 to Nov. 7	7.82	48

During the winter months of 1921-1922 we used gas grates considerably and the highest we paid was $4.26.

Complaint was made to the Gas company about the bill of $7.82 and, of course, the inspector, never to our favor of the company. Did anyone ever get a favorable report from a company inspector? This is not my first complaint to the company.

If the Laclede Gas Light Co. charged every other consumer as they charged us, they would not need a legal rate of $2 per thousand—they'd get it anyway.

"Frank" Legislation.

IT appears that a member of the Board of Aldermen has introduced an ordinance making it a criminal offense to cross a street in the middle of the block. Until auto drivers can, in some way, be prevented from turning corners at a 90 to 30-mile gait, as many of them now do, it is a self-evident fact that the safest place to cross a street, especially downtown, is in the middle of the block where one has only to watch two ways, while at the intersections they have to look four ways, one way being backward.

Often, in the congested districts, machines are stopped from four different directions at the same time, rapidly turning corners in all four directions making a kaleidoscopic condition that puzzles the most active and alert person and causing an extremely dangerous condition, especially for children or infirm people.

This ordinance is in the class of "frank legislation," with which the law probably requires a certain police force to enforce it even in the inefficient manner in which the various other safety ordinances are enforced, namely, blinding headlights, speeding, running street cars while discharging and taking on passengers, parking at the curb in such manner as to make it difficult and sometimes impossible for passengers to enter or leave cars (this latter especially on Olive street between Fourth and Twelfth streets), starting crowded cars with lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes, all of which are already laws, but seldom enforced.

That for the "He-Man."

ONE of the rapidly growing evils that American womanhood has got to take cognizance of, and put down is the "he-man" of the "he-type." We carry a narrow, selfish grudge against your benefactor, the "he-man." He mentions our present woes, and forgets the past. "Eating at the vitals of our civilization," should read "eating at the evils of our civilization." The "he-man" is not the evils. The "gift of gab" is not as bad as the "he-man's" gift of gab.

A Lady President! Does he really see the faintest possibility of such a ray of hope? Well, cheer up, girls, the best is yet to come.

He had better shake himself loose of these morbid ideas; they will only bring on an attack of indigestion. He had better take his mother, wife and sister by the hand and lead them on to victory. I am a wife, mother, grandmother, and I say what this country needs is the Golden Rule.

MOTHER.

In That Sol.

AM surprised at the number of people who try to make the Bible say that we should have "light wine and beer." G. S. had a letter in yesterday's Post-Dispatch in which he says, "With wine going down and necessities going up day by day, we are heavy of heart. Must not we have now, according to the Bible, a drink to forget our poverty and that we should not remember our misery?" Again he says, "The Bible says, 'The poor shall have a drink.'"

Now, for the information of about 118,000,000 people in this country, G. S. ought to give us the chapter and verse where these words can be found. The Bible says nothing of the kind, and G. S. ought to know it. So, if he is a poor man and has no Bible, I will give him one that he may become informed.

J. R. BULLINGTON.

THE BRITISH ELECTION TANGLE.

The conspicuous feature of the British elections is the rise of the Labor party to the place of leading opposition. It succeeds the Liberal party, which is divided into two factions, with a total vote of about 100, while Labor has 130 and the Conservatives 340. The complete returns may change these figures slightly, but the relative positions will not be altered.

Labor will have another advantage which it has not hitherto had: it will have more skillful leadership in Parliament. While its present leader in the House, Arthur Henderson, strangely enough, was defeated, among its successful candidates were intellectuals who espoused its cause and who will strengthen the party in parliamentary tactics and debate.

Lloyd George is the loser in numerical support, while his opposing Liberal faction, under Asquith's leadership, gained seats.

The strength of the parties and factions in the returns is, however, apparent, not actual. It is impossible to tell, until Parliament meets and a test of strength arises, precisely what the strength of each party is. All are divided into factions. The Conservatives, like our Republicans, are not united, but divided. The party contains Ulsterites and coalitionists—co-operators—who supported the Lloyd George coalition and are not yet converted to party rule. The Liberal membership is divided into Lloyd George coalitionists and Asquith regulars. The Laborites have a faction of independents differing rather widely from the regular Labor party in policies.

The fact is that none of the parties knows where it stands or what its real strength is on strict party lines. Bonar Law is not yet fixed in his place with a united majority upon which he can count for party support, nor is Labor assured that it can sustain a united front as opposition leader.

Notable men in all the parties were defeated. In a large number of constituencies the successful candidates won on account of triangular contests, in which the results were not conclusive as to the majority sentiment with regard to parties.

The election was the first step toward coalition disintegration, in which the actual sentiment of the voters and the real strength of the parties were not fully demonstrated. It was marked by cross purposes and internal discussions which seriously interfered with the recording of definite conclusions on the part of the electorate. It is probably only a prelude to another election, when actual conditions in Parliament have been disclosed and the parties have demonstrated their strength and weakness in discussion and division. The co-operative and opposition forces created by the war coalition cannot be dissolved and reformed into original party units by one election. It will take time and test to straighten out the tangle.

WE FURNISH ANOTHER APOLOGIST.

Congressman Dyer, it is announced, will have charge of Attorney-General Daugherty's defense in the impeachment proceedings brought by Congressman Keller of Minnesota.

He will hardly be unhappy in that role than was Senator Spencer as chief counsel for Newberry before the Senate. St. Louis is enjoying a doubtful eminence in supplying so many defenders for gentlemen so obviously in need of defense.

A NEW FORCE IN THE SENATE.

The event of overshadowing significance in the election in Michigan was the repudiation of Newberryism by the electorate, without regard for party lines. The abstract principle at stake, the principle of honesty in elections, was of vastly more importance than the political fate of any person involved. Nevertheless, it begins to appear that, in the person of Woodbridge N. Ferris, as described by our staff correspondent, Paul V. Anderson, in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, the Senate has acquired a member of distinguished gifts and more than ordinary magnitude.

His record as Governor of Michigan for four years supports this impression. Noted for his stubbornness, he succeeded, nevertheless, in getting important legislative measures through a Legislature that was overwhelmingly Republican, a notable feat for a Democratic executive, and one indicating tact and resourcefulness, as well as determination. His attitude on capital and labor is one of liberalism toward the latter, as shown by his scorching interview with the copper magnate who was willing to share adversity, but not prosperity, with his employees. His criticism of the tariff, the ship subsidy bill and other measures of the Harding administration is not merely hostile, it shows an enlightened understanding.

But the outstanding aspect of the new Senator-elect's character is that he does his own thinking, and acts courageously upon his conclusions. These are qualities which the present Senate most lacks. A body consisting chiefly of mediocre nobodies, it has responded invariably to the impulses of fear, selfishness and party obedience. Those members of more than ordinary ability have been conspicuous by contrast. There is reason to believe that Senator Ferris will be a worthy addition to that small group.

CITY EXPANSION ON PRINCIPLE.

Former Judge Samuel Rosenfeld, president of the Million Population Club, has submitted to Judge Daniel G. Taylor, chairman of the Committee on Counties, Cities and Towns of the Constitutional Convention, a proposal opening the way to a reunion of the city and county as a substitute for the annexation provision recommended to the convention by the committee.

Because of his experience in the law and as a public official and his exhaustive study of the subject of city expansion by reason of his presidency of the organization devoted to that undertaking, whatever Judge Rosenfeld may advise on the subject is entitled to consideration. The charge of partisanship or self-interest either on the part of Judge Rosenfeld or any other affected party may be demolished provided one principle covering the subject be agreed upon in advance.

This simple principle cannot be too much emphasized or too often repeated. It is that all provisions of law and Constitution should be so devised as to eliminate every possible interference by the State with the free exercise of their will by the populations affected. In other words, annexation or expansion should be a simple matter of self-determination. The only reason for any State law on the subject is to enforce fair play. It should protect the affected parties from the busy intrigues of privately interested politicians and partisans. That should be the full extent of State concern. Any other concern is tyrannous and meddling and contrary to the principles of American democracy.

Let us compare, then, the proposals of the constitutional committee and of Judge Rosenfeld by this test. The committee proposal would limit city expansion to a definite mileage covering less than the present urban area of the county. It would put at least three choice weapons in the hands of obstructing politicians who could declaim effectively against striking off taxable property from the county, who could present freak annexation proposals for the purpose of getting them voted down and preventing any other election on the subject for five years, and who could turn the issue into a county seat fight requiring a two-thirds majority to carry the proposal.

The Rosenfeld plan leaves it entirely optional with the city and county whether the city extend its limits so as to embrace the county or "re-enter, reunite or consolidate with said county," and designates the procedure for such action through city and county authorities and popular vote. This proposition not only stands the test of self-determination; it is self-determination.

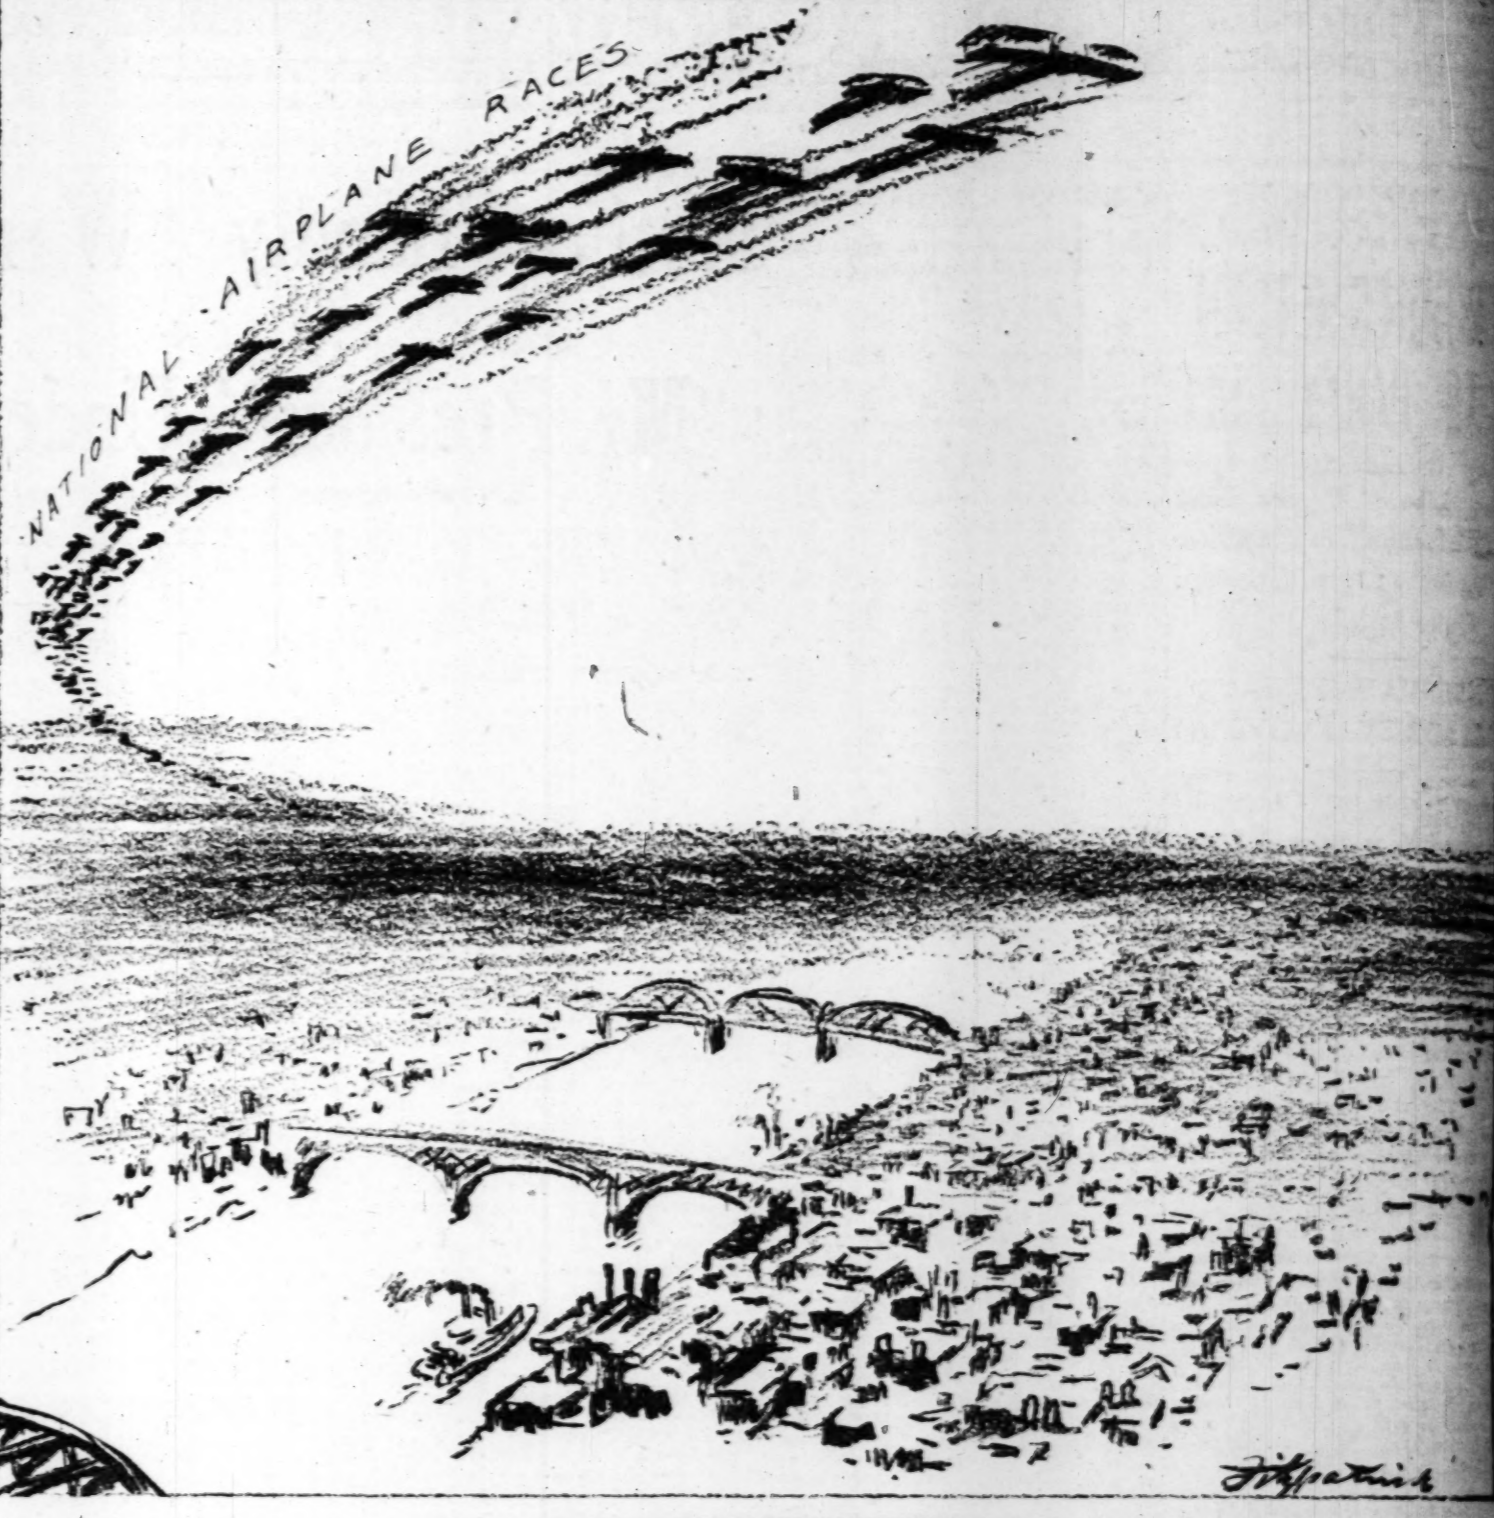

In all fairness the Constitutional Convention and its committee should hear the city of St. Louis on this subject, and the Mayor and Board of Aldermen should add their official voice to a definite proposal adhering to the principle we have named. Let us get our principles straight and then let us give them authoritative support.

LOOSE-TONGUED POLICEMEN.

A few weeks ago policemen trying to obtain confessions from two men charged with a crime, told those men that Theodore Lange had given information against them. Lange, in fact, had done nothing of the sort. It was a "white lie" told to stampede the prisoners into admissions of guilt. It was not successful.

Wednesday night Lange was assassinated while riding in an automobile. Neither the murderers nor the motive for the crime have been identified. But it is possible, obviously, that Lange might have been killed by persons who regarded him as a "snitch." If this should prove to be the case, the policemen who told that "white lie" would be convicted of moral responsibility for his death.

This, of course, would be no defense for the men who actually killed him. There should be no concessions to gangsters because of their known willingness to commit murder. Nevertheless, it is a horrible thought that citizens are subjected to the danger of assassination because of the thoughtlessness of some loose-tongued policeman. There are other ways of obtaining evidence. This case, regardless of what the facts may show, should serve to end, for all time, a singularly damnable practice.

CAN'T WE DECOY THEM?

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McDanns

COMMENTING upon the defeat of Senator Hitchcock, a Nebraska editor waxes hot enough under the collar to exclaim that a man who had to be interned during the late war has a much better chance to be elected to public office in the United States than one who served his country. This sounds like stealing Will Rogers' stuff, but it will save us from putting a too-constructive interpretation upon the case with which men like La Follette and our friends went back to the Senate. We wish people who like war would tell us whether we are ever going to be able to have another popular war.

Mr. Burrus, a life insurance man from Kansas City, where the expectancies of life insurance no doubt exceed in too many instances those of life itself, offers to his craft as a model in salesmanship the celebrated oration of Marc Antony over the body of Caesar. Shakespeare, he says, was the greatest salesman in history, and he commends to all life insurance salesmen this exposition of the poet's method. Tut-tut, Mr. Burrus! Have you forgotten Paul? If the biggest idea, as we like to believe, yet sold the world is Christianity, was not Paul, as Nietzsche affirms, the man who did it? Is there anything else in salesmanship, since we are calling it that, comparable to the Epistles of Paul, which prevailed over more competition than there is in life insurance even, and removed obstacles before which Shakespeare had sung in vain? Then, too, the example is better suited to the occasion, inasmuch as Paul was selling eternal life insurance. He wrote a lot of it.

There seems to be nothing upon which the wets and dries can agree, which betrays a bad rift in the political lute. Both claim to have got the better of the recent set-to at the polls. In states where the wets unquestionably did win, such as New York, the dries are daring them to do something about it. That is more self-confidence than anybody has displayed since the celebrated toasts to "der tag."

Erer Rabbit's habit of lying low now and that seems powerfully to have influenced the official career of Erer Hughes, whose comments since the people threw the Newberry whitewash bucket at him have been something less than audible.

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH OF THE HON. H. OOTCH BEFORE THE MOONSHINERS' PROTECTIVE ASS'N OF AMERICA, IN CONVENTION ASSEMBLED, AS REPORTED BY PHILLIP MCCANN.

Fellow Members and Ladies: In the face of the recent election returns giving a large majority for light wines and beer, it behooves the M. P. A. A. to bestir itself from the lethargy that has crept upon it in the mistaken idea that prohibition has come to stay. Our lobbyists have been working hand in hand with the liquor question was an issue. This shows that our contributions to the Anti-Saloon League must be increased materially.

Wholesome beer is bound to put us out of business, as our product is not considered by the public at large as the same of purity. (Laughter.) But still we can point with pride to the fact that in the short time since prohibition was put over our industry has grown from nothing to its present gigantic proportions, with members in all parts of the country representing millions of dollars in capital and billions of dollars in profits. Our growth is more phenomenal than that of either the automobile or the motion picture industries. (Applause.)

Now I have a suggestion to make that, in my humble opinion, is the most practical way of combating the growing feeling against prohibition. Let every one of us pledge ourselves to donate 1 per cent of all profits derived from the manufacture of our product to the Anti-Saloon League to help them fight beer and wine. This will amount to millions of dollars annually and we can well afford it as long as the Government refuses to collect revenue. We still have the best of it all round, as we pay no income taxes. (Shouts of "Hurrah for prohibition!") Under the existing laws the public have no choice as to what they will drink—they either buy our product or nothing. We spend no money for advertising yet are known throughout the length and breadth of the land, and our product is available at every turn.

As a little token of our appreciation for the good the Rev. Shupp has accomplished for us, I further suggest that we make up a purse for him, as we really owe him more than a debt of gratitude for his continued activities mean money in our pockets. In conclusion I exhort you to lend your every effort, financial, moral and political, to the Anti-Saloon League, that glorious institution that has made our product saleable in this country to the extent of billions of dollars every year, and except for its untiring efforts the Volstead act would be modified and our industry annihilated. (Moans.)

MIDOCCEAN MUSINGS.

WISH and surge and through the fog the misty, waiting horn.

Opalescent mists blind me and the salt air stings my eyelids.

Bidding tears to flow over my cold cheeks. Fierce gusts hurl me hither, thither. Clutch my cloak and strive to wrest me from my hold.

Strange throbbings. Like some o'erwrought heart. Heaving wastes. Like some great boom, where fierce sobbing are the sea.

Foam and phosphorescent glow far below. And far above, great gleaming stars. Which watch there all alone.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapermen and periodicals on the questions of the day.

JUDGE FLORENCE E. ALLEN.

From the Ohio State Journal.

WE cannot help hoping that Miss Florence E. Allen was not correctly quoted in an interview in which, discussing her successful candidacy for a place in the Ohio Supreme Court, she was represented as stressing the importance of a woman's viewpoint on the bench. The duty of a Judge of the Supreme Court is simply to interpret and apply the law justly, promptly and with sound common sense. In the performance of this duty, and we believe Judge Allen will perform it notably well, there is no distinction between woman's viewpoint and man's viewpoint. It is simply a question of knowing the law and having an inherent sense of justice, and an honest, courageous spirit. We believe Miss Allen will make a great Judge, not at all because she has woman's viewpoint, but because she has these other qualities. Nor does she owe her election to the fact that she is a woman, but to her reputation as an able, high-minded, fearless citizen and Judge. Miss Allen shows fine advantage in her statement upon her election in which she said: "The issue of any election is not important. But the issue of the election of a nonpartisan candidate has real significance even more so when the election was to the Supreme Court, where party politics plays a part. The fact that 490,000 voters dispersed part lines and gave us their support means a real advance toward independence of judgment. This is modest, sensible and true. We want of the Supreme Court to be divorced from party politics and from sex politics, wholly devoted to interpreting and applying the law without fear, favor or prejudice."

UNDER PANAMA'S FLAG.

From the New York World.

WHEN it becomes necessary to make a choice between foreign registry and prohibition aboard ship, the United American Lines Company prefers foreign registry. It prefers to fly the flag of Panama to the flag of the United States, and the flag of Panama will undoubtedly fly over the transatlantic liner Resolute and Reliance, each in the neighborhood of 10,000 tons burden. R. H. Robinson, president of the company, explains that the step is taken with great regret, but that there was nothing more to be done, since "following the precedent of the Attorney-General's opinion more than 50 passages were canceled on the Resolute and Reliance cancellations involved for the most part the expensive accommodations." Panama is a small country with a small navy, but its marine has begun to grow and there is one thing that can stop it. If it did not stop the power of the Shipping Board to veto ships in registry not anticipated in the purchase of the tract, there would not be an American liner on the Atlantic by 1924. Panama, that thriving little head-of-steam, would have them all. Not because the shipping companies love Panama so much, but to be frank, because they love the flag of the United States less now that they can't make profits under it. It appears that liquor is a commodity that liquor cannot be sold on vessels flying the Stars and Stripes. It is less certain, despite Judge Hand, that some legal loophole will not be discovered in the Volstead act to allow ships to carry liquor on foreign ships that touch our shores. Business before sentiment being the rule, the haul up the stars and quadrangles of Panama haul down Old Glory!

Enlightened, I freely own,

The Conning Tower

NEW YORK, Nov. 16. When first my way to fair I took, From "Last Poems" by A. E. Housman.

When first my way to fair I took, Few pence in purse had I, And long I used to stand and look At things I could not buy.

Now times are altered; if I care To buy a thing, here and here's the fair.

But where's the lost young man? To think that two and two are four And neither five nor three, The heart of man has long been sore.

And long 'tis like to be. To us the exciting and the literary went of years was the arrival yesterday of A. E. Housman's "Last Poems."

It is 25 years since Housman's "A Shropshire Lad" put new notes of sweet and painful beauty into lyric poetry. Here are more. A reading of "Last Poems" must be, our guess is, at once the high inspiration and deep despair of every person engaged in the composition of verse like writing every remaining moment of his life, in an effort to approach perfection, and like never writing another line in hopelessness of ever attaining it.

Letters constantly come to a newspaper to the effect that this or that story or cartoon or paragraph or editorial is offensive to "your Druid readers," or "your Santa Fe readers," or "your Sigma Xi readers." "I wonder," said the best-equipped newspaper man in New York yesterday, "if it ever occurs to any of those birds that a newspaper may have readers that are offensive to it."

Efficiency and time-saving are all right for some of us, but for others of us who don't know what to do with the time they save they are just an annoyance. The no-rubbing-shaving cream, for instance. In the old days we used to be able to do up a whole column in the meditative posture occupied in rubbing in the lather.

Reply of a Wise Old Cynic. (The bright and cynical young men who control the literature of the day from their posts as column conductors, "P. A. A.," the master of the Conning Tower, etc., etc., etc., from a Globe editorial.)

Brightness, I freely own, is mine. At the Florian Spring I sip. On the mighty line. Or quip.

In cynicism adamant, For years I've been severely schooled. Respectfully, I simply can't be fooled.

"Bright?" There I argue not at all; And "cynical?" describes my tongue. But O Beloved Globe, why call Me young?

If woman is a vertical oblong, as Frank Alvah Parsons says she is, and should dress like one, as she says she should, he evidently believes—that is, B. D. suggests that he evidently believes—in hewing to the line, letting the hips fall where they may.

To Melissa in Praise of a Certain Bard. Melissa, better bounds than this On sweeter-sounding lyres Should send all praises of the bliss With thee a bard acquires.

And to describe thy lightest kiss All but a Horace were amiss.

And yet this humble harp I play And lyrically extol So that on sweeter strings no guy Hath quavered more expert. For I should poke my nery eye Were any other bard to try.

There ought to be a Federal amendment to the effect that Mrs. Dorothy Parker be enjoined from food and drink unless she continues writing fiction. Anybody who can lag—it is the first fiction story of hers we ever saw, at any rate—can achieve the distinction that is evidenced in "Such a pretty little picture" in the December Smart Set, ought to shove her piccolo flute a few weeks in favor of the clarinet.

"We are becoming a nation of molluscoids," says Dr. F. T. Garrison. "Overcoats, rubbers, muffers—all these things are softening." In about two years it will be impossible to get an umbrella without a doctor's prescription.

It Seems to Me

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—"What you said about the '49ers let down the last bar," writes Tom Dick. "I've been trying for weeks to write a few things about the theater in general but there has been no continuity in it. Now that the '49ers put on a show without continuity of purpose, perhaps I can say a few things on as pale a thread."

"After all, in the theater there is no reward for the pioneer. He bursts through the walls of the conventions; he is laughed at and scorned; he becomes the prey of the intellectuals and straightway dies of anemia. And, he is copied. But when he is copied his ideas become regular and the public take from the imitator willingly what they sneered at in the pioneer. To me the regrettable thing about the '49ers' reception is that it may have killed a movement; perhaps their first bill was not all to be desired, but if they could have been encouraged they might have gone ahead, and learned as they traveled, the proportion of meat to condiment necessary for a 'sandwich.' The Washington Square bunch half a decade ago certainly was the forerunner and pioneer for the lusty Theater Guild. The Punch and Judy bunch might have blazed the way for a little brightness in the mental mediocrity of the present day revue. Of course, the public was being asked to pay $5.50 a seat while the experiment was being made—and that was not so pretty."

"The thing we most missed in the '49ers was the lack of the visual. The boys raise the theater too high; they think of it in the terms of their own mental deftness, and that of their friends. They seem to forget that it is an elemental thing—on page 2 of my high school psychology. I read that the theater appeals only to the emotion. The boys got too far away from page 2. They had nothing to appeal to the emotions. Everything was mental. There was little for the eye, for the welcome color of the hobby horses and certainly little for the outward ear. Some of the new men scene painting schools could have helped them. All through they seemed to etch their pictures when they needed broad brushes."

"But what I wanted to wait about was pioneers. Some years ago a man by the name of Anderson comes along with the only new note in the revue-making for the time. He can't make the grade for a time. Then another revue-maker takes his idea, his artist, and makes a hit; you all rave about him. Not until Anderson's stuff is three years old does he get recognition sufficient to establish him. Then there's a Mr. Burnside, over at the Hippodrome, who has been doing certain things for a good dozen years. I don't know what they said about him when he started, but he is mildly praised now and his creations recommended to the children and visiting relatives. Another fellow a few blocks away takes the Burnside technique, the Anderson color and treatment, hangs on a few thousand diamonds and wows—this is the glory, and money. I would like a chance to write a review of a revue, in an independent paper, saying what per cent was original, what the sources, what borrowed and what by your leave. (It would probably be my last review.)"

"So the '49ers should not despair. They should bend the knee a bit more to the public, give them more of what they want, and thus speak in their own precious stuff unaware. Who knows, in time their stuff might be packing the theaters on Broadway—the other fellow's theaters—and they could be off thinking up things new and glittering for the tired producer."

Here and there we have noticed passing editorial comment on the fact that the '49ers received its most flattering reviews from friends and participants. The editorial paragraph seemed to be the members of the '49ers. Why should they be? The most casual psychologist ought to know how difficult it is to speak well of the work of a friend.

Indeed, most of the comment on the '49ers has been far afield in point of fact. Let any group of authors, painters, musicians or what not get together and there is certain to be an underlying jealousy. If a man in China writes a successful comedy, we are able to rejoice at it, but if the author is one of our close friends we can't help wishing we had done it ourself. His success exalts him over us and we don't like it.

Of course, we have struggled against this, but it is not enough for that matter, to keep every entirety out of our writing. And few people and any careful examination of the reviews written by the members of the '49ers will reveal little tricks of enthusiasm. The dogs have been used largely to swat each other.

On several occasions we have reviewed pieces of our own work and have invariably been treated with more harshness than we actually thought they deserved. There was no honesty in that, but such a performance gives the author an honest feeling he has been treated fairly. He feels himself to be a good man when he stops bounding rocks off his head.

We fear that at such times as we have trampled upon friends there has been no sorrow on our heart. Deep in our souls we do not want them to do too well. The notion that little groups form for the purpose of self-admiration is quite erroneous. They band together so that if anyone in the crowd attempts to fly too high they can catch him by the coat tails and pull him down before it is too late.

BARRYMORE'S HAMLET

"BEST IN GENERATION"

Critic Praises Actor's Grace, Wit and Clarity—Good Supporting Cast.

By HEYWOOD BROWN.

Drama Critic of the New York Morning World.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Arthur Hopkins has just presented John Barrymore in "Hamlet." The production was designed by Robert Edmond Jones, with music by Robert Russell Bennett, and was given at the St. Hill Theatre.

Barrymore is far and away the finest Hamlet we have ever seen. He excels all others we have known in grace, fire, wit and clarity. This final quality should be stressed. Back in high school we remember being asked whether Hamlet was really mad. If we had seen Barrymore it would have been possible for us to say to the teacher, "Don't be silly."

Indeed, Barrymore's performance is as if it were a perfect model in the play to an extent which quite outdoes the most profound study of the footnotes and all the doodads in the back of the books. When he does it, everything seems simple and straightforward. There are many strands in the man, to be sure, but the spectator need do nothing but keep his ears and his eyes open to get them all.

This Hamlet is as modern as the most recent disciple of Freud. We learned last night, for the first time, that his tragedy lay in the fact that he did not have the courage of his complexes.

Closest Episode Like Love Scene. Barrymore's most original contribution to the role probably lies in his amplification of the unconscious motives of the Prince. He plays the closet episode with the Queen exactly as if it were a love scene. Nor did this seem fantastic to us. Shakespeare was a better Freudian than almost any of the moderns because he did not know the lingo. He merely set down the facts. After seeing Barrymore's interpretation we are convinced that he added nothing but merely grasped suggestions which were already there.

And yet, we are quite willing to believe that there has been better Hamlets than that of Barrymore, and that there will be others. It is difficult for us to conceive of one more intelligent, but from our point of view he does not quite sustain all the emotional values of the play. Only in a few fugitive moments did we feel sorry for Hamlet. He was always interesting, but that did not necessarily make him pathetic. We would like a Hamlet with just a touch of Merton Gill about him.

Absolute Precision of Voice. The falling off from what would seem to us the Hamlet of a dream lay in Barrymore's diction. He has done marvels with his voice. In fact, he has done too much. In gaining what seems to us an almost absolute precision, some of the emotion and eloquence which lie in occasional imperfection is gone. Tones which rasp the ear may tear at the heart. We not only felt that Barrymore was constantly correct, but that he knew he was correct. There was at least the possibility of suspicion that his alma mater was not Wittenberg but Harvard.

And then again this was a Hamlet so exceedingly shrewd and wise that it was difficult to believe in his nature. It is only fair to say that the precision of which we have spoken was more evident in the early parts of the play. Perhaps it will disappear to a great extent when the first night strain has ended. Fundamentally we think the concept of the play is unassailable. Roland Young once appeared in a play called "Hollo's Wild Oats," in which the hero undertook to play Hamlet as a perfectly reasonable and almost casual young man. The notion was set forward as a farcical idea. We rather thought it wasn't. Now we know Barrymore plays the role without any of the traditional bellowing and posturing. Particularly he takes the soliloquies as calmly as you please. They are put forward in an ordinary conversational tone. This must be right. The soliloquy is spoken thought and certainly even the most harassed person does not shout at himself.

Good Supporting Cast. There was great artistry, too, in the manner in which Barrymore picked out the rest of his cast. Here was no class day oratory in the manner of Walter Hampden, but a young man, who might have had a lot of fun in the world if the time had not been his own. This, then, is the clearest, the most interesting, intelligent and exciting Hamlet of our generation. It will do everything except write your heart. Of course, we are surmising on the basis of what happened to our own.

The supporting cast is good. Some members of the company are much better than that. We are thinking particularly of John S. O'Brien as Polonius. He also liked the queen of Blanche Burke, the Ophelia of Rosalind Fuller and the first gravedigger of Whitford Kane.

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR AMERICAN CHILDREN

French Soldiers Repulse a Force of British Regulars Sent to Take Fort Duquesne.

A British Force Was Sent to Take Fort Duquesne.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

IN those social circles where differences of opinion are usually settled by an appeal to the manly art of self-defense there is a saying that "the first blow is worth $25." Since time immemorial nations seem to have been convinced of the truth of this statement. Whenever it was possible they have begun hostilities without an official declaration of war.

After 50 years of border-quarrels, of raiding parties and wilderness fighting, it became clear to both the English and the French Governments that their rivalry on the American continent would eventually lead to open warfare. But before they took this ultimate step they tried to maneuver themselves into the most favorable position. France sent many soldiers and supplies to Canada and England sent many soldiers and supplies to Boston and to New York and the agents of his Most Catholic Majesty and the agents of his Most Catholic Majesty's good brother, King George, worked secretly among the Indian tribes that they might count upon their support when the day of mutual assassination should have come.

As a preliminary step the British Government ordered her fleet to the mouth of the Saint Lawrence River to prevent the shipment of further supplies to the French forces in Canada. But blockading was hard work in the days before the invention of wireless and the English fleet did not accomplish very much.

Meanwhile, on land another attempt was made to dislodge the French from the Ohio region. A force of British regulars under command of a professional militarist of the old school, by the name of Braddock, was sent into the wilderness to take Fort Duquesne. Braddock graciously consented to accept the help of 500 Virginian militiamen under the well-known Col. Washington.

This force came to within a day's march of Fort Duquesne and was then attacked by the soldiers of France. The encounter took place in the woods. Braddock, who had been trained to conduct battles according to the prevailing textbooks of the year 1755, would not allow his men to break ranks and fight from behind trees as the Virginians were doing. This was magnificent but also very deadly. In less than an hour more than 900 of his men had been killed or wounded out of a total force of 1200. Braddock himself had fallen a victim of his own conspicuous but useless courage. Col. Washington of the Colonials then took command and led the remnant of the army back eastward. Even then the defeat might have been turned into victory if matters had been left to the discretion of Washington. But another professional soldier happened upon the scene, superseded young Washington and voluntarily changed the English defeat into a rout. He burned his stores, sacrificed his wagon train and kept his exhausted men going until they reached Philadelphia. The curtain had been raised, but the first act of the drama had not been a success.

HARDING AGAIN NOTES
CHANGE IN DRY FEELING

Predicts Liberalization of Law in Second Letter on Subject; Contents Withheld.

By the Associated Press.
TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 17.—A second letter, in which President Harding is reported to have expressed an opinion that the public attitude toward prohibition has changed, has been received by E. C. Stokes, Republican State chairman of New Jersey. It became known yesterday.

Stokes, like Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, recipient of the first letter, declined to make public the contents of the communication, but said that in it the President admitted that a change in public attitude was indicated in the recent election, and wrote that it probably would result in a slight liberalization of the dry law.

Stokes said the letter was in answer to one he had written to President Harding reviewing the wet victory in New Jersey.

Denies Trend of Letter Was Prediction of Liberalization.

By the Associated Press.
BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, lecturing here before women's organizations, authorized a statement last night in which she said that she was under the impression that no reporters were present when she read an extract from a letter written to her by President Harding relating to prohibition enforcement. The letter was read before the Republican Neighborhood Association on Tuesday.

Mrs. Robinson authorized this statement:
"Mrs. Corinne Robinson regrets that publicity has been given to the fact that she read some extracts from a letter to her from President Harding at a meeting of the Republican Neighborhood Association. The letter in question was one written 10 days before election in answer to a communication which Mrs. Robinson had forwarded to President Harding, as she had twice received the request to do so from the writer."
"Mrs. Robinson wished to show her fellow workers in the Republican Neighborhood Association the patience and conscientiousness shown by President Harding in answering any communication forwarded to him by a member of the Executive Committee of the National Republican Association. Mrs. Robinson is a member.

"The New York Tribune made a mistake in stating that the general trend of the letter was a prophecy of liberalizing the prohibition enforcement act. The President made no prediction whatever connected with the liberalization of the enforcement act. When Mrs. Robinson read the extract from the letter, the meeting was about to adjourn and she was under the impression that there were no reporters present. When they spoke to her later, she said she was not willing to give them the letter for the press."

Mrs. Robinson was asked whether she would give the letter to the newspapers if authorized to do so by President Harding. "That is up to the President," she answered.

TRAINMEN'S CHIEF DENOUNCES STONE PLAN

W. G. Lee Says His Brotherhood Will Not Follow "Red" Ideas of Plumb Plan Exponent.

By the Associated Press
FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 17.—Scathing reference to the manifold activities of Warren S. Stone was contained in a statement issued here yesterday by W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in commenting on press dispatches to the effect that as president of the engineers' brotherhood Stone had sent out circulars advising members of his organization to become organizers of the Switchmen's Union, a rival of the trainmen.

"I am not surprised at anything Mr. Stone might do, since he has become quite an organizer lately and seems to believe the business and labor methods of today are wrong," Lee declared.

"Mr. Stone is president of the Plumb Plan League, created to take over and operate the railroads; president of the Brotherhood Co-operative Bank, calculated to put Wall street out of business; president of a West Virginia coal mine, likely intended to put the coal barons of this country out of business, and the promoter of many other branches of commercialism.

"It is reported he favored forcing members of the firemen's brotherhood into the organization he represents. He made application for membership in the American Federation of Labor some five years ago, but was refused, and it is not strange that he has now adopted the switchmen's union organization and become its spokesman.

"I will say, however, that the trainmen will continue to handle their own affairs in their usual manner, making good the agreement made with their employers at all times, regardless of any threat made by Mr. Stone to put them out of business, if they do not follow some of the 'Red' ideas of others."

Farmer Killed by Train.
By the Associated Press
COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 17.—Thomas Carpenter, 60 years of age, a farmer, was struck and killed by a Wabash passenger train at Sturgeon, 30 miles northwest of here, as he was walking down the track ahead of the train yesterday afternoon. He apparently did not hear the train approaching.

Eatmor Cranberries
If anything is delicious—it is Cranberry Meringue Pie
Here is the recipe:
One and one-half cups sugar, two cups cranberries, one-half cup cold water, one tablespoon flour, two eggs, one tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon vanilla, two tablespoons powdered sugar.
Cook sugar and water to a syrup; add the cranberries. Cook until the sugar has popped. Cool a little. Mix smoothly in a bowl the flour and yolk of the eggs; add three tablespoons of the juice of the cranberries; add this to the berries and simmer for three minutes. Put in butter and vanilla and set aside to cool. Turn filling into deep pie crust previously baked; cover with meringue made from stiffly beaten whites of eggs and powdered sugar. Place in cool oven to set and slightly brown the meringue.

There is a real difference in Cranberries. Insist on getting "Eatmor" brand.

Older Men This Year at Municipal Establishment.
Seventy-one men applied for accommodations at the opening of the Municipal Lodging House, 118 South Twelfth street, last night. When the city's home for the aged was opened on Nov. 1 last year, 100 lodgers were on hand. Attendees note that while many young men were in the ranks last year, aged and decrepit men were in preponderance last night.
The men were served breakfast of coffee and frankfurters this morning and most of them were put to work cleaning up the place. They will be fed the second meal today in the City Jail, as the kitchen of the Lodging House is not ready. The general plan of last year will be followed, allowing the men three days' lodging for one day's work.
Voted in 1944 and in 1932.
By the Associated Press.
SHELBYNA, Mo., Nov. 17.—J. L. Oliver, 103 years old, Shelby County's oldest resident, voted at the last election. Oliver said he first voted in 1844. He has supported the Republican ticket most of the time since it came into existence, but declared he scratched his last ballot.

ST. LOUISAN RELEASED FROM STATE PRISON

Harold J. Hillebrand Had Served
Year and 5 Months of 5-Year Robbery Sentence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 17.—
Harold J. Hillebrand, 31 years old, of St. Louis, once convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment, the case later being reversed by the State Supreme Court, was released from the penitentiary yesterday, after having served a year and five months of a five-year sentence for robbery.

The State Board of Pardons and Paroles, in releasing Hillebrand, took into consideration the fact that he had been imprisoned in the St.
Louis jail for three years before he was sentenced to the penitentiary on the robbery charge. Fred Essen, Republican leader of St. Louis County,
Assistant Circuit Attorney Jones
H. Parker and former Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas O'Brien were among those who recommended clemency for Hillebrand.

Repudiated Murder Confession.
The murder case in which Hillebrand was involved was one of the most puzzling with which the St.
Louis police had dealt in recent years. Samuel E. Brown, 28 years old, was held up and shot on the night of March 16, 1918, while walking with his wife and 3-year-old child from his shop at 1035 Whittier street. Mrs. Brown was not sure whether the robbers were white men or negroes.

Later the police received a letter written by Hillebrand from Camp Funston, where he was in the selective army service, in which he said he was the murderer of Brown. He was brought back to St. Louis and at his trial repudiated his confession and set up an alibi. He was convicted, but when the case was reversed by the higher court the murder charge was nolle prossed and he was permitted to plead guilty of robery of a drug store at 4401 Easton avenue, which he previously had admitted to the police.

Action Not Opposed.

In a letter to the board of Pardons and Paroles former Assistant Circuit Attorney O'Brien, who had conducted the prosecution, stated that he believed Hillebrand was influenced in the robbery by a woman with whom he was infatuated. Circuit Judge Landwehr, the trial Judge, wrote to the board that if its investigation of the case warranted such action he had no objection to the release of Hillebrand. Circuit Attorney Sidener likewise put the matter up to the board.

Jacob D. von Maur, superintendent of distribution for the Laclede Gas Co., told the board that Hillebrand, while employed by the company prior to his induction into army service, had a good record.

Charles E. Moody, foreman at the Rock Lake roundhouse of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near East St.
Louis, and Michael Spaulding, a chauffeur, who were charged with highway robbery in a warrant issued yesterday after they had admitted participation in the theft of $2500 from Charles Schlothe, Moody's clerk, on Nov. 9, are being held under $10,000 bond each today for their waiver of preliminary examinations yesterday.

The bonds were made large by officers with a view to keeping the men in custody pending further search for $1000 of the stolen money.
Otis Miller and Beattie Hall, also charged with connection with the robbery, were released yesterday on bonds of $1000 and $500, respectively. The woman did not waive preliminary examination, which was set for tomorrow. Moody has admitted that he made plans in advance for the robbery, which occurred when Schlothe was riding with him in an automobile. The money had been obtained by cashing payroll checks for 33 employees at the roundhouse.

The Vacuum Cleaner of the Stomach

THE celebrated Dr. Brokaw of St. Louis used to say:
"Spinach may be the broom of the stomach, but sauerkraut is the vacuum cleaner."
The remarkable efficiency of sauerkraut as an intestinal cleanser and disinfectant was first pointed out by Metchnikoff, the head of the Pasteur Institute in Paris. In his famous book on "The Prolongation of Life," Metchnikoff emphasized the importance of lactic acid bacilli in keeping the intestinal tract free from disease-producing germs.

Metchnikoff said, referring to sauerkraut: "Now this article of food contains any quantity of lactic microbes in the shape of a bacillus smaller than the Bulgarian yabour bacillus. From all that we know of the beneficial part played by lactic ferments, it is not rash to assign to the sauerkraut a certain importance in combating the evils of the intestinal flora. On the whole it is becoming more and more evident that lactic acid ferments should enter largely into human food, as well as into the therapeutic treatment of a great number of diseases."

The free booklet, "Sauerkraut as a Health Food," tells the story of the remarkable discoveries regarding sauerkraut. It also contains many new recipes.

"HOW CAN EMERSON DO IT?"

Is a question you often hear asked when expert shoemen examine the shoes and prices in my store windows.

Unless you have visited my store recently you cannot realize what wonderful values I am showing.

I can give you better values because I buy my materials in large quantities for all my stores. I have cut every expense to the bone. My long experience has taught me when to buy to the best advantage. For instance leather has advanced 25% since I bought the materials for the shoes I am offering you now.

Many stores have raised their prices in sympathy. Mine are not raised because I stamp a fair and square retail price on the soles of my shoes at the factory. This price is based on the cost of materials actually used and cannot be raised later on.

I invite you to visit my stores and form your own opinion. I will not ask or expect you to buy unless you are convinced that you are getting more for your money than you can get elsewhere.

ACCOUNTS OF WOMAN UNION OFFICIAL UNDER INQUIRY

Treasurer of German Workers' Local Given Until Today to Deposit $1000 in Bank.

Miss Lillian Kriedel, 35 years old, of 3613 California avenue, treasurer of the St. Louis local union of the United German Workers of America, yesterday was allowed until today to deposit approximately $1000 in the Lafayette-South Side Bank to the credit of the local's account, following a conference with other local union officials at the office of Assistant Circuit Attorney Schwartz.

The conference followed a visit to the Assistant Circuit Attorney by Isaac W. Hashkine, general auditor of the union with headquarters in New York; Ethel Cowher, local president; Theresa Singleton, local financial secretary; and Alton Hank, local recording secretary.

They said that Miss Kriedel had been ousted as treasurer, but had refused to turn over the books of the union. They added that about $1300 should be on deposit to the union's credit at the bank. Detectives who were sent to the bank reported that only $351 was on deposit.

Miss Kriedel refused to make a statement today, saying her attorney had advised her not to talk for publication at this time.

LONDON PHYSICIAN ACQUITTED OF POISONING WOMAN PATIENT

He Was Accused in Connection With Death of Woman Under Whose Will He Was a Beneficiary.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Dr. Bernard F. Hartzorne has been acquitted of suspicion of poisoning a patient, Mrs. Fels, under whose will he was a beneficiary.

"I am going to ask you not to pay any attention to gossip," the Coroner said to the jury in the case. "We are not going in for trial by gossip, for if we did, probably everybody would be convicted."

Mrs. Fels, a wealthy widow, died as the result of a collapse after Dr. Hartzorne administered an anesthetic preliminary to an internal examination. No other physician assisted and no nurse was present. Dr. Hartzorne declared the patient refused to permit anyone else in the room. After a time rumors began to circulate and finally it was announced the police would arrest the physician. Before they could do so he attempted to kill himself by poison, writing to his wife that he could not face a trial. As soon as he recovered he was arrested and Mrs. Fels' body exhumed.

A medical expert declared he found nothing unusual except a trace of morphine and he was unable to say whether this was sufficient to cause death.

FORD SHARES LISTED ON CURB

But It Was Stock in Canadian Company That Was Sold.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Shares of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., were listed on the New York Curb Market yesterday, and for the first time a stock bearing the name of Henry Ford was bought and sold in Wall street. Only two sales were made, due largely to the fact that many floor members did not know it had been listed and did not recognize it by the abbreviated title that appeared on the stock tickets. The first sale was 36 shares at $400 a share. The second was 20 shares at $402.

The company, which is not a subsidiary of the parent corporation, is capitalized at 100,000 shares. Ford is president and owns approximately 80 per cent of the stock.

To Give the Hair a Naturally Wavy Effect

Ever since the virtues of the almerine hair-curling method first became known in this country, druggists here have been having a really extraordinary demand for liquid almerine. Its effectiveness, its convenience and its entire harmlessness doubtless have been responsible for its increasing use among well groomed women.

One need only apply a little of the liquid with a clean tooth brush before doing up the hair and the tresses will have a beautiful wavy and glossy appearance which bears no marks of artificiality. The best way is to divide the hair into strands and moisten each of them from root to tip. There is no discoloration, no sticky, sticky or other unpleasant features. Liquid almerine is fine for bobbed as well as long hair; also as an aid in shaping "ear muffs" and in keeping them in place over the ears.

Dry Law Violations.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Less danger results from violation of the prohibition law by the foreign-born population than by Americans themselves, Miss Charlotte Fraser, field worker for the eastern group, declared yesterday at the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Ignorance of the law is responsible for many violations by foreigners, she said.Mrs. Laura F. Miller of New York, director of the department of women in industry, explained the industrial creed of the W. C. T. U. as follows:"We believe in an eight-hour day;
in equity of conciliation and arbitration; in justice as opposed to greed of gain; in peace on earth and good will to men."Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia urged discontinuance of the word
"prohibition." "It is an un-American word," he said, "and it should no longer be the object of the W.
C. T. U. to fight the liquor interests.

Puritan Hop-Flavored Is Wide Favored

THIS city of St. Louis alone has used millions upon millions of cans of Puritan Hop-Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup this year. There are two reasons for this. First, the quality of the malt and hops. And Second, the wonderful perfection of the blend. Thousands of people have told us that no one has been able to blend the Hop-flavor with the malt and get such perfect balance as Puritan. So the flavor accounts for the favor.

MRS. PHILLIPS' SMILES SAVED HER FROM DEATH

Said to Have Influenced Men Jurors Not to Send to Gallows.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Clara Phillips was saved from the gallows by her smiles.

The men members of the jury which found her guilty of second degree murder for beating Mrs. Alberta Tremaine Meadows to death were quoted today as admitting that had it not been for the defendant's smile she probably would have been convicted of first degree murder, without recommendation for clemency, thus making death the penalty. They said that Mrs. Phillips seemed to study them, one at a time, and to flash frequent smiles. "And she had the most appealing smile I ever saw," was the way one juror was quoted.

But the women jurors were not affected by her smiles, it was said, as all three favored a verdict which would have sent Mrs. Phillips to the gallows. While the defense planned to ask a new trial next Monday, the date set for passing sentence, which may be any period of years from 10 to life, State counsel said they had no comment to make on the verdict. Mrs. Phillips was quoted as saying: "I don't know whether I killed Alberta Meadows or not, but if I did it was for mother love, for Armour E. Phillips, my husband, is my only baby, and when I realized he was being taken from me I fought and fought and fought, so I might have him always."

COLORADO RIVER WATER ALLOTMENT AGREED ON

By the Associated Press.
SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 17.—The Colorado River Commissioners start today the actual work of writing a compact for the allotment of the water of the Colorado River. The commission yesterday agreed finally upon the main principles of a treaty which will be entered into between the seven states in the river basin and the Federal Government. The commission, headed by Chairman Herbert Hoover, began its meetings here in executive session Nov. 9.

The commission did not announce all details of the compact. Its announcement said the agreement would provide for dividing the basin into two groups. Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico will be placed in the upper division, while Arizona, Nevada and California will be in the lower division. These divisions will divide the waters of the river.

No announcement was made concerning any provision for possible future requirements for Mexico. A provision was made for the summoning of a second commission in later years to provide for an equitable division of the unallotted water, the present commission apparently not being desirous of taking full responsibility for all time. Agriculture will be given preference in rights for use of the water and none of the existing rights in the river basin will be disturbed.

Hoover announced the commission was in full accord regarding the urgency of immediate erection of control works to protect the Imperial Valley in California from floods.

PRICES IRREGULAR IN SLOW TRADE ON STOCK MARKET

Firmness of Foreign Issues Feature Bond Section—
Call Money Down to 3 1/2
Per Cent—Exchange Rates Strong.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"A quieter condition presented itself in the stock market today. The turnover was smaller and fluctuations were considered within a narrower range. Starting irregular prices firmed up in the first hour, reacted in the second and recovered in the third. The market then turned dull. Speculation for the decline appeared to be held in abeyance, but sentiment was not without firmness in the foreign issues still the feature. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent, was reduced to 4 per cent during the second hour, to 3 1/2 per cent during the last hour. The latter is the lowest price since Sept. 18.

Further Exchange Recovery.

"A further emphatic recovery occurred in the foreign exchanges. The movement started at London before the opening on this side of the water and reflected a disappearance of off-setting rather than large scale buying. Confirmation of yesterday's indications of a conservative victory in the English elections and the continued evidence of growing British and French ability to work together undoubtedly lay at the bottom of the market's strength. French franc rose to 245 cents, or to some 80 points above the low of the week and after reaching 7.94 cents were still up 13 points on the day. Sterling touched 148 1/2 and after slipping back 1/2 was 1/2 of a cent higher than at the previous close. Similar firmness existed among the other European currencies, with the German mark at 10 1/2, of a cent and Indian rupees moved into new high ground at 30 1/2 cents.

Reserve Bank Statement.

"A reduction of 1/2 per cent in the reserve ratio of the Federal Reserve system reflects in part current increases in trade activity and the tendency of the season. The figure still stands at 7 1/2 per cent which is incidentally, 3 1/2 per cent above that of a year ago. Another factor is, however, at work, namely, a decrease in gold reserves. This total of gold holdings are off $4,900,000 on the week and are $1,000,000 smaller than on Oct. 19. A per cent of the Canadian dollar reached the gold shipment points a few weeks ago. Whether the movement of gold across the northern border will continue for some time or prove to be merely an incident of the crop moving season remains to be seen."

UNVEILING OF THE MISSOURI MONUMENT NEAR CHEPPY, FRANCE, ON NOV. 5

The monument with the dedication palms around the pedestal. Below the seal of the state, is the inscription: "Erected by the State of Missouri, United States of America, to the memory of her sons who died in France for humanity during the Great War, 1917-1918." In the background may be seen the boughs of one of the Three Trees which gave the spot its name.

Marshal Joffre and three Generals of the French army at the dedication ceremony.
Photographs made for the Post-Dispatch exclusively by Donald Hise, Paris.

Missourians grouped at the base of the monument. Among them are Mrs. Nancy Coonsman Hahn, who designed the monument; Mr. and Mrs. Manton Davis; Col. James J. Mayes of the Reparations Commission; Major Norman B. Comfort, chairman of the Missouri Memorial Commission; Col. Mott and David O'Neill. Former Serg. Julian Morel of the French artillery is near the center of the picture. He was attached to the 138th Infantry as interpreter, and near this spot won the Croix de Guerre by the valiant service he rendered the St. Louis regiment.

French and American soldier salute. The American flag is borne by the gigantic Corporal Toneman of the Army of Occupation. The torn French emblem is the battle flag of the 120th regiment of infantry.

When Should a Lover Stop "Flirting"?

Must Experiments in "Heart Testing" Be Given Up Before Actual Engagement?

By BETTY VINCENT.

"THE other girl" or "the other chap" seems to be the cause of many broken-up love affairs.

When Florest or Belle or Lilly-May cuts in for Jack and that young man openly shows that he is pleased, then Mary-Kate gives Jack "the once over" and declares he couldn't possibly love her.

And when Mary-Kate goes to a frat dance with Billy or takes a long hike with Clarence, Jack gets up on his ear and puts down "the atrocious flirt" under Mary-Kate's name.

In other words all the Mary-Kates and Jacks in the world are constantly on the outlook for "the other girl" and "the other chap," and when they see their sweetheart playing up to some one else it hurts—that's all, and they have the feeling that "they are through."

And yet—just remember that Mary-Kate and Jack are young. They may just idolize each other, and yet when they meet new friends their own age brace up like a jolly gale of fall wind cutting up with a host of fallen leaves.

Mary-Kate is ridiculous when she worries about Jack's apparent flirtation and Jack has no right to condemn Mary-Kate if she goes to frat dances or takes hikes with other chaps.

Youth is only trying out love, and every youth and maiden should be permitted to do a good deal of "trying out" before they finally settle down.

Real Situation.
In nine cases out of 10 Mary-Kate and Jack actually are "head-over-heels" in love with each other. And if neither of them gets jealous and scrappy they will wed some day. But let Mary-Kate begin to question Jack's flare-ups or temporary flames and the deal is off. Or let Jack insist that Mary-Kate positively must not dance with other men or receive letters from them and she is just going to show him whose girl she is.

Jealousy and the spirit of ownership before the vital question has been asked.

And in a like manner Mary-Kate is attracted to the chap who wears such striking neck-ties or tells one such delightful thing about one's self. But give Mary-Kate time to think over things and she will decide that Jack is pretty good after all.

Quarrel, bicker, sneer about these "other girls" and "other chaps" and you spoil a good romance. Let love take its turn, test itself out, and things will come out your way. Leave it to Jack and to Mary-Kate. (Copyright, 1922.)

The Young Fox Is a Prisoner Again

By Thornton W. Burgess

"My dear how some folks count it joy When other folks they may annoy."

—Young Fox.

THE young fox, with the chain dragging behind him, made his way back to the Green Forest toward his home. He had almost reached there when he jumped over a log and that dragging chain once more caught him. This time the young fox quite lost his temper. He pulled at it savagely, trying to jerk it free. Now, it happens that this was the worst thing he could have done. Had he gone back and gently tried to get it free, he would have had no trouble. But the sudden jerk which he gave wedged it in a crack in the log and the more he pulled the more tightly the chain was held.

So it came about that when he went up pulling and went back he couldn't get it free. That chain was held as securely as when it had been made fast to the post in Farmer Brown's barnyard. Once more that young fox was a prisoner. He was just as much a prisoner as he had been in Farmer Brown's barnyard, and he was a great deal worse off.

Of course, he didn't understand this at the time. He was so anxious and intent on getting free that he forgot he was hungry. With teeth and claws he worked and worked and worked. But he couldn't budge that chain the least little bit.

At last he had to give up and rest. Then it was that he began to realize how much worse off he was than when he had been a prisoner in Farmer Brown's barnyard. There had been some one to bring him food. Now, he had been forgotten. Always there had been all he wanted to eat. Now there was no one to bring him food, and there was nothing at all to eat. He must get free or starve to death. The very thought of it gave him new strength and he worked and worked and worked until his teeth and his claws were sore.

Jumping the hare came along and discovered what had happened to the young fox. Now, Jumper has no love for any fox. Too often he has had to run for his life from Reddy Fox to have any kindly feelings for a member of Reddy's family. But when he saw the dreadful trouble the young fox was in he actually had pity for him.

"My, my, my, this is too bad!" said Jumper. "What a dreadful thing! What a very dreadful thing! I don't see what he is going to do. I wish I could help him. I do so. But I can't. There isn't a thing in the world that I can do. My, my, whatever is going to become of him?" Then Jumper hopped on his way, for he couldn't tear climbed the tree, where he knew he would be safe, and there he began to scold the young fox. The fact that the young fox hardly looked at him made him scold all the harder. Presently Chatterer's sharp eyes discovered that something was wrong with that young fox, so he ventured down a little nearer. Finally he saw what the trouble was.

"My, my, my, this is too bad," said Jumper.

Then you should have heard Chatterer's tongue. He hates all members of the Fox family. To find one of them in trouble is always a joy to Chatterer. So now, instead of being sorry for the young fox, as was Jumper the hare, Chatterer began to make fun of him. He said all the unpleasant things he could think of. My, how his tongue did fly! He even ventured down on the ground, so as to be nearer the young fox. The young fox paid no attention to him. Chatterer grew more excited. He became so excited that he forgot there might be a danger. It wasn't until the young fox suddenly sprang for him that Chatterer sensed the danger. I'm afraid that that would have been the end of Chatterer had it not been for that kindly friend, Jumper. Once more the chain yanked the young fox up short and he missed a Squirrel dinner.

Fashion News Notes

PARIS.—When the Parisienne desires to ornament a blouse or a skirt or a frock today she plaits together a handful of colored velvet ribbons in striking shades. Some of this plaiting is wide enough to form a panel, though often it is a narrow band striking edge to neck and sleeve.

PARIS.—Short coats of broad velvet goods are making extensive use of money fur. One such coat shown today in henna and tan had four bands of black money fur around the lower edge. This fur was used also in a thick fringe on the outer edge of the sleeves from wrist to elbow.

LONDON.—There is a suggestion of the old-fashioned bustle in some of the models now being shown by leading dressmakers though the bustle has not yet been taken up by the masses. The result is obtainable as often gathered into a large knot in back, with a small train depending therefrom. Or the draperies may be gathered at one hip into various loops stiffened so that they stand out sharply.

NEW YORK.—An unusual box in which to keep cigarettes or jewelry shown here today is copied from an old Italian gem casket. In carved walnut, it is inlaid with panels of brocade, in dim, rich colorings. The box may be matched in candlesticks, the three pieces adding a quaint touch to the boudoir table.

NEW YORK.—Glove silk lingerie in two-tone effects is simply finished these days with at pointed edge or with bands of Irish or flax lace. Such a result is obtainable as an erlich topped with pale blue, ocean green with mauve and maize with white.

NEW YORK.—Bands of pin tucking stitched in metal form one good way to make a crepe de chine blouse attractive. The result is obtainable as an erlich topped with pale blue, ocean green with mauve and maize with white.

LONDON.—Sea blue glass beads have caught the fancy of fashionable folk and are to be seen everywhere today is that of a colored lace used with a black lace. For example, a smart afternoon gown is of beige satin covered with black lace, and with beige lace sleeves.

PARIS.—The vogue today is all for demure shades of gray and brown in hats. Dull tones rather than bright colors are being used. Yellow cloth trimmed with silver is also the only vivid spot in the millinery of the moment. A rough brown is relieved by dull copper.

PARIS.—The styles in hair dressing have gone back to the medieval and starting faithfulness to line and detail. In some cases today the hair is piled high at the back of the head and topped by a stiff velvet flower. In others, it is pulled out behind the ears to represent drooping feathers and looks quite as remarkable as the description sounds.

LONDON.—Knitted wool models in a multiplicity of gay shades are being shown here today for winter sports. One suit in yellow had a skirt, coat, gloves, hat and scarf to match. Even the stockings matched, and each item of the costume was trimmed with bands of taupe brushed wool.

LONDON.—Neatness is a new note, or rather an old note revived, in the early winter fashions. Waistlines are trim, and though panels may still give an uneven line the skirt is banded neatly about the hips. Little floating scraps of chiffon are less and less seen on the newest models.

NEW YORK.—The prettiest of the latest wristwatches has a little doll seated perky on its top. The doll may be a Japanese or a Chinese lady or even a Japanese or Chinese man with drooping mustaches and gorgeous golden robes. Of course the rest of the handbag is brocaded in Oriental tints or ornaments with a band of oriental embroidery.

NEW YORK.—Sky blue pajamas in medium silk have taken upon themselves yet a new note of decoration. This is long silk fringe, edging the rounded neck, the short sleeves, and the hem of the upper garment. The fringe edges also the seam of the trousers in dainty imitation of cowboy "chaps."

Uncle Sam Says: Scarlet Fever

Scarlet Fever is regarded by the informed as one of the most dreaded disease of childhood, not only because an attack may be so malignant as to cause death in a short time, but also because of its high degree of infectiousness and the many grave complications with which it may be attended, and because the hope of recovery, even in cases apparently mild at the outset, has proved too often deceptive.

This booklet deals with the cause and symptoms of scarlet fever, and contains instructions for its prevention.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch may obtain a copy of this booklet free as long as the free edition lasts by writing to the United States Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., asking for "Supplement 21."

THE HOUSE OF MOHUN

By George Gibbs

"There's no greater compliment than that paid by Beauty to Age," he said gracefully.

"Oh, thanks," said the girl carelessly. "But you needn't accuse me of politeness. I'm not polite. If you don't finish this, Dicky will. And when Dicky drinks he never knows when to stop."

"Lyett drank and then murmured, 'It's really pathetic how dependent prohibition has made us upon the munificence of our friends. How is your mother, my dear?' As beautiful as ever, I'm a hardy perennial. Age cannot wither, or set me in a bored way. 'Good Lord, yes. It's her specialty.'"

She was sitting on the table now swinging her legs. "I'm coming out this fall. I've got to—I'm 30. Mother is so old, I feel as if I ought to put it off as long as I can. She says it puts her on the shelf. As if anything could do that! But I'm not keen about it. It's a rotten bore to have to be so terribly pleased about everything. You'll come to my tea, though, won't you?"

"Well, rather. I'm a hardy perennial. Age cannot wither, or set me in a bored way. 'Good Lord, yes. It's her specialty.'"

"If I didn't," said Mr. Lyett, "I should be here."

This conversation had completely eliminated David Sangree, who stood, shifting from one foot to the other and marveling at the personal quality in Cherry Mohun's remarks. She was as downright as the noonday sun.

"I do wish, Cherry, that you'd pay some attention to David Sangree," said Lyett, who had noted his companion's discomfort. "He has been trying to offer you a health spa for at least four minutes."

"Oh, I beg pardon!"

"He's a friend of your father and one of our most distinguished ethnologists. Before the war?"

"What on earth is that?" asked Cherry, for the first time fixing Sangree with her blue gaze.

"An ethnologist, my dear, is a person who studies the habits and customs of the different races and families of the earth. Dr. Sangree?"

"How terribly interesting," said Cherry, looking at him earnestly. This queer creature was actually saying something nice. Funny! A moment ago he had looked a hundred. Now when he smiled he seemed much younger than himself. And his eyes, even through their goggles, were rather compelling.

"You wouldn't find me worth while," she said dryly, trying quite hard to be polite. "Would he, Mr. Lyett?"

"That depends. I've just been telling him that he needs living up. I fancy a study at close range of a debutante of this year would be something of a liberal education in the habits and customs of the tribe of Manhattan, in the year of grace nineteen twenty-two."

Cherry Mohun laughed. "I like that," she said with a shrug. "You needn't pay much attention to what Mr. Lyett says," put in Sangree quietly. "Besides, I don't dare to hope you'd care what my opinions were."

"Oh, I don't know. They might be worth while," she said indifferently. "Do come in some Sunday afternoon for tea. Bring him, Mr. Lyett. Mother will be pleased. She likes—"

She paused in a new glance of appraisal as though she had thought of a word and then changed her mind. "She likes different sorts of people," she finished. "Thanks," said David Sangree. "I shall be delighted."

Cherry Mohun swung her feet and slid down from the table, seizing the teapot. "Well, good-by, Mr. Lyett. Don't be too severe on the younger tribes of Manhattan. They're doing the best they can. I've got to go and help keep this lot in order. They're getting restless. I'm going to walk Dicky around until he wears off. Don't Dicky, but you know. Good-by, Dr. Sangree."

not to know it. And I'm just stupid enough to imagine that her ill-manners were aimed at me."

"Perhaps," laughed Lyett. "But I rather think you flatter yourself. Cherry is the product of her times. Thank the War. But she can be adorable when she likes."

"H-m," said David Sangree. "You seem to be on tolerably intimate terms with the Mohun family."

"Oh, yes, of course. The friendship began in a business way, you know—over your affairs and my own. But Mrs. Mohun is the prettiest woman in New York."

"Ah, I see," said Sangree slowly. "Nothing like that, my dear. Quite a wonderful person. You'll know what I mean as soon as you see her."

"They are very rich, of course."

"Oh, yes. He's one of the wonders of the age. There's the big place with the white columns in the Oyster Bay. Nowadays prosperity is reckoned by the number of servants about thirty—when they can get 'em. Such luxury is impressive, you know, in a promoter of large enterprises. And then, you see—his wife has social ambitions."

"Oh, I see. I feel a certain curiosity about the mother of such a daughter."

"And not a little about the daughter herself!" Lyett laughed as he rose and took up his golf clubs. "David, I must take you to roar for them."

"God forbid!" said Dr. Sangree, blinking through his spectacles.

The Mohun Family.

THE Mohun family had emerged from the pale obscurity in the years immediately preceding the Great War, when Jim Mohun's first million dollars (by long odds the hardest to get) had produced through fortunate ventures, other millions almost overnight. The Pittsburg, from which the Mohuns had migrated to New York, was very proud of the achievements of its native son. The house in which the Mohuns had lived, a square, frame affair with a cupola on the roof, was pointed to with pride as the former residence of Jim Mohun, the financial wizard. And the east-end deer, which faced the beholder on each side of the gravelled path that led to the front porch of the old house, still stood expectant as though awaiting the great man's return.

But Jim Mohun had long ago outgrown those provincial shades. And Alicia Mohun looked back from the splendid perfection of her showplace near Oyster Bay with gentle shudders at the memory of those expectant deer.

It was true that, when they were first married, the house at Lieperville had seemed a very splendid place, for Jim Mohun's fortune was then rated only in the thousands and in very few of those. But Mrs. Mohun was very proud of the fact that her mother was a Van Wyck and later, when social ambition became the actuating motive of her life, managed to use that family connection with an adroitness which paved the way for her husband's growing fortune had already blasted through the social wilderness.

The move to Long Island had been a shrewd one, for this was the backdoor into New York Society, and Alicia Mohun looked back from the splendid perfection of her showplace near Oyster Bay with gentle shudders at the memory of those expectant deer.

How to Purchase Kitchen Utensils Wisely and Economically

THERE is a spirit of economy which says, "We can't afford." And a wisdom that says, "We must afford." The tools necessary to the well-doing of our culinary work. Doing without the things we need to produce the best results is a sin that many housewives are continually committing in the name of economy.

Now, there are two kinds of buying. One is that of cluttering useless utensils and the other of utensils needed to do the work creditably. The right utensil is always a labor-saver, which is another point to consider. A place for everything, to which it should be returned after using and cleaning properly—insures the longevity of the utensil. Expense should not stand in the way of supplying actual needs that aid in lightening labor.

The outfit for a larding needle and a box of graduated steel skewers is small, but few housewives get them. They depend on the butcher for their poor skewers. Instead of having just what they need at the time it is needed. The needle is not used as much as it should be in the American kitchen. Beef larded with bacon, macaroni, herbs, sausage meat or other savory adds laurels to the cook's ability.

A pastry bag with two or three tubes costs little, and it is useful in decorating with whipped cream, frosting, mashed vegetables or eggs over planked or broiled foods. The bags are easily washed, dried and folded away until required again.

If the family like omelettes, invest in a folding pan. It saves lots of bother and turns out a perfect product. Of course, a frying pan may be made to answer, but if other things have been cooked in it, it is apt to be sticky and to burn before the eggs are set. If the cook is not expert in turning or folding the omelette it is apt to look uninviting, and the eggs will not be cooked on top unless put under the broiler. This is fatal to the appearance of the omelette generally. With the proper pan all this is avoided.

Another kitchen necessity which is often overlooked is a medium-sized ham boiler. This convenience is good not only for ham, tongue and corned beef boiling, but for goose.

One of the first women of the country to go into the export business as a vocation was Miss Blanche G. Schwartz of Cincinnati, who is at present an exporter of such masculine commodities as nuts, belts and rivets, farming implements and spark plugs.

Heroines

Hawaiian Queen

APIOLANI was the wife of King Kalanikouhi. She was born in Honolulu, Hawaii, in 1825. She was a god daughter of the Hawaiian people. She was a heroine of the Hawaiian people.

The Hawaiians had long worshiped Pele, a god supposed to dwell in a large volcano near Honolulu. She was a heroine of the Hawaiian people.

Missionaries called upon King Kalanikouhi, and from them she learned the ways of the world. Pele was in reality but a goddess, unable to change in any way, and the destinies of the Hawaiians, unless they fell into her hands.

Heart Was Heavy. Kalanikouhi had seen men, women and children sacrificed to the god, "fire god," every year, and he was heavy because of the cruelty. What could he do to make his people see the error of their belief in Pele?

Madame Sushilla Devi, of Purnah, India, was a heroine of the Indian people. She was a heroine of the Indian people.

The Man on the Sandbox

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

WHEN you have a sore throat
That is getting your goat,
Don't worry but cheer up and laugh;
You can readily see How much worse it would be
If you happened to be a giraffe.

If on Thanksgiving Day
You're unable to pay
The exorbitant price for a turkey,
Just stifle your grief
With a cut of roast beef
And think of the guys out of work.

Don't be grouchy and scold
If the weather is cold,
And the furnace is eating your coal;
But think of the guys
Who are up to their eyes
In snow at the northern pole.

Don't grieve and be sad
If your children are bad
And mischievous all the day long;
Put up with their pranks,
And give Providence thanks
That the youngsters are healthy and strong.

IN RE MUSSELS.

The Supreme Court has decided that a mussel belongs to the owner of the property through which the river in which the mussel is found runs. If you get what we mean.

The court holds that while the muscular development of the mussel gives it certain powers of locomotion they are almost nil. Therefore, a mussel is not in any sense a migratory fish, and when it once chooses its habitat the betting is 100 to 1 that it will stay put, in a manner of speaking.

The mussel is listed as an edible bivalve. But personally we'd prefer a weak fish to a mussel any day.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB.

THE EVIDENCES OF REGENERATION.

By a unanimous vote of the plantation hands one Henry Johnson was held to be the wickedest man on the place. He shot craps, he had served a year on the chain gang for swindling a wicked rascal, and, generally, lived a wild, free, reckless life. Accordingly, there was rejoicing at Zion Church when word spread that Henry at last had seen the light and had been converted.

The revival meeting where he had been redeemed culminated one Sunday in a grand baptism on Goose Creek. Henry had an eight-mile tramp to reach the appointed spot. When he started from his cabin after breakfast he stowed a dozen cold biscuits in the front of his shirt, meaning to refresh himself on the way. But in his new-born exaltation he actually forgot to eat.

A great host was gathered on the creek bank and, at his appearance, loud hallelujahs arose in a fervent chorus. The preacher laid hands on Henry and, aided by two of the deacons, escorted him to the middle of the stream where the water was waist-deep. As the clergyman, pronouncing the words of the ritual, immersed Henry deeply in the water the lowmest bottom of Henry's shirt slipped from its button-hole and rapidly, one by one, four huge cold biscuits arose to the surface and went bobbing down the current.

From the shore a devout sister raised a sudden cry:
"Lordy, Parson, dip 'im ag'in—dip 'im ag'in, in de Lord's name!
